Personal Encounter Between Montgomery of Pennsylvania and English of Indiana.

The Proposed Uniform Decimal Currency—Cutting Down the Estimates—Arizona and Dakotah—Another Ten Million Loan—The Occupation of Sonora and Chihuahua.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Dec. 19.

A difficulty occurred between Messrs. ENGLISH of Indiana and MONTGOMERY of Pennsylvania, on Saturday, which continues to be the subject of excited conversation, and an attempt is being made to give it a political turn. As many erroneous reports will be made, I have procured the facts for the TIMES.

The parties met for the first time this session on Saturday, at the corner of Fourteenth-street and the Avenue. As they approached each other, ENGLISH, ignorant of any ill-feeling existing, said "How are you, Montgomery? I am glad to see you"—at the same time extending his hand, which MONTGOMERY declined, saying; "I speak to no puppy, sir!" ENGLISH immediately struck him with a heavy hickory cane sword-cane across the head, knocking him partially down and into the gutter, and breaking the stick. ENGLISH stood with a piece of the stick and the sword,—which had been drawn, not intentionally, but by the force of the blow—while MONTGOMERY rose with a brick in his hand, which he, however, threw down, and ENGLISH walked off. After ENGLISH had gone some fifteen paces, MONTGOMERY again picked up the brick and threw it at ENGLISH, who attempted to dodge behind a post. A piece of the brick struck ENGLISH's boot-heel, but did no damage.

MONTGOMERY proceeded to a magistrate's office and procured a writ for ENGLISH, while the latter returned to his room near by, armed himself, and then continued his walk. Hearing that MONTGOMERY had sworn out a writ, ENGLISH also proceeded to the office and gave bail for his appearance at Court. MONTGOMERY sent ENGLISH word by the Lieutenant of Police that he would fight him, "but not with weapons." MONTGOMERY weighs upwards of two hundred pounds and is regarded the strongest man in Congress. ENGLISH weighs about one hundred and fifty.

I am informed at the Treasury Department that Professor ALEXANDER, who was engaged to procure a uniform decimal currency, has failed to accomplish any practical result, and he wants a further advance of money, which Secretary COBB declines furnishing.

The Committee on Ways and Means are cutting down the estimates fearfully. The Civil and Diplomatic, and the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bills will be ready to report on Tuesday.

The Senate Committee on Territories will refuse to report the Arizona bill unless Dakotah goes with it, and this cannot be done unless the Indian treaties are confirmed, extinguishing their claim to the country. These treaties are now pending before the Senate. Q.

(FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Dec. 18.

The Secretary of the Treasury advertises for proposals, to be received until the 24th of January, for a loan of ten millions, under the act of June last.

The balance now in the Treasury is $4,041,000. The receipts last week were $1,316,000. The amount of the drafts paid was $2,202,000. The increase over the amount in the Treasury of the week previous is $547,000.

In the Senate report of the 15th inst., Senator COLLAMER is made to agree with Mr. CLINGMAN in his Clayton-Bulwer resolution, whereas he considers that resolution exceedingly questionable in its propriety.

Charleston papers of the 4th inst. say that the field officers of the Fourth brigade, State Militia, are making arrangements to give General Sumter a military reception, and have engaged apartments in the hotel and suite. General Sumter expresses himself exceedingly thankful for the intended honor.

Several Mexicans held a consultation last night in regard to that part of the President's message recommending the military occupation of Chihuahua and Sonora. General TRIAS and Admiral ZIZAMAN, who were of the number, left to-day for Mexico to inaugurate, it is said, an opposition to such a movement.

A caucus was held to-night of such members of Congress as are favorable towards a pension bill for the soldiers of the War of 1812, with a view to making arrangements to effect its passage.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Dec. 19.

The Secretary of War, in reply to an inquiry of the House Committee on Military Affairs, has expressed a very decided opinion that the proposed military occupation of Sonora and Chihuahua, so far from adding to the existing necessity for an increase of the army, would have the opposite effect. A line of posts stretched across from Texas to Guaymas would be much shorter than the present curved line of posts held by our troops; and being shorter, the line could be occupied by a smaller force than is now required, besides being more effective than the present arrangement. A great saving, too, would be made in the means of subsistence and the curtailment of the expenses of transportation.

The Post-Office Department intends to resort to stringent measures in all cases where the offence of using borrowed franks to cover private correspondence, so prevalent in Washington, can, by any possibility, be traced to the guilty parties.

An effort will be made in the House to-morrow to introduce a resolution, instructing the Committee on Territories to report a bill repealing so much of the English Kansas bill as prohibits the formation of a State until the population is sufficient for a Representative in Congress, according to the Federal ratio. It is to be presented as a test question.

Railroad Accidents.

MR. THOMAS GRIFFITHS, OF NEW-YORK, KILLED.

NEWARK, N. J., Saturday, Dec. 18.

Mr. THOMAS GRIFFITHS, a bachelor, aged about thirty-five years, doing business as grocer at the corner of Avenue C and Eighth-street, New-York, in attempting to get on the 10 o'clock Philadelphia train while in motion, near the Centre-street Dépôt, in this city, was thrown under the wheels, horribly mangled and instantly killed. He was called to by a flagman, but paid no heed to it. He was recognized by a friend, who has a daguerreotype likeness of him. Information has been sent to his friends. The articles found on the body were a gold detached lever watch, a ring with the initials "T. G." and a pocket-book containing money and a receipt for $357 to Mr. Thomas GRIFFITH, dated Dec. 9.

COLLISION BETWEEN A RAILROAD TRAIN AND A SCHOONER.

TRENTON, N. J., Saturday, Dec. 18.

The mail train for New-York at this place this morning, ran against the bowsprit of a schooner, knocking off the top part of the engine and a gig on the top of the freight car, and throwing the mail-crate into the canal. WESLEY THOMPSON, engineer; ABNER HAVIS, watchman, and WILLIAM PARKER, brakeman, were badly injured. The vessel was going down the river, and the wind blew her bowsprit over the track just as the mail train was coming up.

Death of an Editor.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Saturday, Dec. 18.

ROBERT M. RIDDLE, for many years Editor of the Commercial Journal, died this morning.

Terrible Explosion of a Steam Boiler and Loss of Life.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, Dec. 18.

The steam-boiler of DELCHER'S Sugar Refinery, in this city, exploded this morning, shattering a portion of the building to atoms, and, so far as at present known, killing four and injuring seven or ten, seven others, some of whom will die.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, Dec. 18—P. M.

The following are the names of the four persons who were killed by the explosion to-day at DELCHER'S sugar-house:—JOHN COWEN, BYRAM GRAHAM, JACOB [illegible] and H. R. TURNBULL. Six others were seriously injured, one or two of whom will probably die, while several others were slightly [illegible] Arrival of the Baltic by the Arabia.

The Dublin correspondent of the London Times, writing under date of Monday, Nov. 22, says: "The safe arrival of the Indian Empire at Brordhaven on Friday last and because known here until yesterday morning, relieves anxiety respecting her had prevailed, and it may now be stated that the weight of opinion was that she was totally wrecked during the late violent gales. It has been asserted that the marine insurance offices in Dublin refused 60 per cent. on Saturday, and that as high as 40 per cent. was previously obtained on policies insuring her."

The following article from the Freeman's Journal contains some interesting particulars respecting the voyage of the Indian Empire:

"The anxiety, which for some time past has prevailed so generally in this country, relative to the safety of the Indian Empire, whose arrival at Galway was so long overdue, is now happily allayed, the gallant vessel having anchored in Broadhaven at 8 A. M. on Friday morning, after having experienced one of the most terrible and continuous storms that has ever been witnessed in the Atlantic. The gratification which all persons must feel at learning the safety of a ship surrounding which some apprehensions had been entertained, will be enhanced in the minds of all who know, by the fact that the steamer, whose safe arrival we now consider, is one belonging to the west India mail steamship line, whose prosperity is a subject of such lively interest to the people of this country. The arduous and dangerous passage the Indian Empire has successfully accomplished under, perhaps, the most adverse circumstances, lasted in all 20 days from Halifax to Ireland. We have been enabled to glean the following particulars of this interesting voyage, which will satisfactorily account for the delay, and which may be relied on as strictly accurate. Having taken in a fresh supply of coals, and repaired some trifling damage which had been sustained by a collision with a boat on leaving New-York harbor, the Indian Empire having then sixteen days' supply of coal, left Halifax on the afternoon of Saturday, the 31st of October, and had a tolerably favorable run to Cape Race, a distance of about 500 miles. The wind was not directly favorable, being on her quarter, and the average speed of the ship during this time was eleven knots an hour. Upon rounding Cape Race the wind shifted dead ahead, and gradually rising, blew with great violence, which in a few days increased to a most fearful hurricane. The ship gallantly struggled against the violence of the wind and waves, the captain displaying all the resources of skillful and experienced seamanship, and being ably seconded by his officers and crew, who, in the most trying hours, rendered to him his ability and judgment. Of course, progress was scarcely possible under the circumstances; and after 13 days of such weather as has rarely been experienced in the Atlantic, even at this season of the year, the Captain found himself still four days' voyage from Galway. Upon calculating the amount of coal which still remained on board, and finding that it was barely sufficient for a four days' run, he thought it expedient to lie to rather than incur the risk of expending all his fuel in an unavailing struggle against the elements. At this time there was a fair prospect of more favorable weather; the barometer was rising, indications of a change were apparent, and moreover it is an unprecedented thing for a southerly wind to last three weeks in the Atlantic, especially at this season of the year, when westerly winds have generally prevailed. However, the expectation of the weather was not fulfilled; the wind still continued high, and the Indian Empire lay to seven days, during which time she made a little headway. At the end of seven days there was a lull, and the Captain gave orders to steam ahead, in the hope of completing the passage without further difficulty. In a short time, however, the wind again sprang up, and increased almost to its former violence. At one time, on Wednesday last, the Indian Empire reached within twenty miles of the Galway coast, running at the rate of [illegible] and a half knots an hour against a heavy sea, when the gale, increasing in violence, there her [illegible] to go to sea, and she was forced to stand away for [illegible] days. The coals had been exhausted for all this time, and it became necessary to consume a small portion of the cargo, consisting of cotton, staves, &c., and also some spare spars and part of the planking of the decks. At half-past one on the morning of Friday, the lights of Broadhaven were sighted, and we need not say that every one on board experienced the keenest delight at the approaching termination of their long and difficult voyage. Broadhaven, as our readers know, is an excellent harbor on the coast of Mayo, about 40 miles from Westport, and slight hours after its lights were sighted the Indian Empire dropped her anchor in the harbor, to the great joy and hearty cheers of the passengers and crew. It is gratifying to be able to state that at no time during the greatest violence of the gale, did the passengers manifest the slightest alarm or unprofessional. Their confidence in the captain, officers and crew never for a moment failed; and they took frequent occasion during the voyage to give expression to this feeling. They knew that everything which skill and judgment could do would be exerted to bring the vessel in; and their confidence was increased by the good qualities displayed by the ship, which excited the admiration alike of the experienced and the inexperienced. The manner in which the Indian Empire stood the severe test to which she was subjected proves her to be an excellent sea boat, well adapted for Atlantic navigation. No more convincing proof of this could be adduced than the fact that she lost only one sea during the whole voyage. Captain Cornelius, who has had large experience as an Atlantic navigator, says that the weather was unprecedented in its continuation of violence and duration. Several wrecks have already been reported, and it is greatly to be feared that a large number of casualties must have occurred on the Atlantic, as well as along our own coasts. The Indian Empire fell in with large quantities of floating wreck during her voyage."

It appears from the statement of a most intelligent passenger, who has crossed the Atlantic no less than five times within the last fifteen months, that soon after leaving Cape Race the Indian Empire was surrounded by a dense fog, to which succeeded the hurricane by which she was driven, or rather against which she struggled, for upwards of three weeks. By the account of this gentleman, who kept a strict log which is printed in the Dublin Mail, the Indian Empire did not sight a single sail from the 1st to the 21st, from which we infer that she was driven out of the usual track of vessels crossing the Atlantic. It would seem by the evidence of the passengers that the weather was so hazy, as well as stormy, that the captain was unable to take a solar observation during 11 continuous days. The Indian Empire behaved well during five days of tremendous weather from Newfoundland to Galway, and made a very fast run from Halifax to Cape Race. The gentleman to whom we are indebted for our information gives the highest praise to the captain, officers, and crew. Not a man received any injury. Considering the severe storms, which the Indian Empire encountered and the difficulty which all feel, who have seen, when stress of weather continued beyond the period for which they are provisioned, that the passengers by and owners of the ship, that the whole had been completely exhausted, and it became necessary to consume a small portion of the cargo, consisting of cotton, staves, &c., and also some spare spars and part of the planking of the decks. At half-past one on the morning of Friday, the lights of Broadhaven were sighted, and we need not say that every one on board experienced the keenest delight at the approaching termination of their long and difficult voyage. Broadhaven, as our readers know, is an excellent harbor on the coast of Mayo, about 40 miles from Westport, and slight hours after its lights were sighted the Indian Empire dropped her anchor in the harbor to the great joy and hearty cheers of the passengers and crew. No more convincing proof of this could be adduced than the fact that she lost only one sea during the whole pass

NEW BOOKS.

[illegible] the holiday season. Perhaps the number of what are prepared for the market as gift-books proper is somewhat less than usual; but several of those which are offered to the public are certainly among the richest and most elegant ever presented for such occasion.

We have already spoken at some length of Hoopes's book of Beautiful Women, which has been published by DERBY & JACKSON; and also of Mrs. Palmer's splendid and elegant Stratford Gallery, issued by the APPLETONS. We have now another volume—the Gallery of Famous Naughts—and American Poetry—worthy to rank with these, from the press of E. H. BUTLER & Co., of Philadelphia. We willingly confess that this holiday season, which brings to our table so many superbly-illustrated volumes, resplendent in Turkey morocco, in ivory paper, and adornment of tooling, would be doubly pleasant to us if these beautiful gift-books contained evidences of the growth of the mechanical arts among us. But they only remind us of our national poverty. Nearly all, if not the whole, of the beautifully-illustrated volumes which have been issued here recently, with the names of American publishers on the title-page, have been foreign productions. They have not only been illustrated by foreign artists, but in many cases they have been printed and bound in Europe. This is the greatest book-market in the world, where books bring the best prices; but they can be more cheaply manufactured in London and Paris, than in New-York, Philadelphia, or Boston, and therefore they are manufactured there to order. Exactly how much of this elegant volume may be of home make we are unable to decide, but we should judge that it was more American than the greater number of the illustrated works which have recently been published. Without touching to the altitudes of English book-making, it is still a very elegant and well-illustrated volume. The engravings, one hundred in number, are mounted in line, on steel, from the designs of eminent artists, most of them selected for the subject; as, for example, we find TURNER furnishing an illustration for HALLECK and for the Editor's Peacock. The selections are from the modern English poets, beginning with THOMSON; our American bards who find a place in the volume are BRYANT, HALLECK, WILLIS, LONGFELLOW, HOLMES, POE, MORRIS, BOKER, SIMMS, PERCIVAL, CONRAD, and COXE.

One of the most elegant and tasteful gift-books of the season is the Wild Flowers, published by BURNHAM. It is a splendid quarto, filled with most exquisite colored engravings of American flowers, each being accompanied by a letter-press description. The drawing and coloring in this volume are most exquisitely done, and the book cannot fail to be among the most popular of its class for the approaching holidays.

Little books for little people continue to be showered upon us, and will continue, doubtless, until after Christmas and New-Year's shall be passed. There is a wonderful amount of ability bestowed upon some of these children's books, not only in the care with which the text is prepared, but in their embellishments, and the beautiful manner in which they are printed. Children were not always so zealously and thoughtfully cared for in these things as they now are. It is a most important thing to early instill into the minds of the young a love for what is true and beautiful in art by placing in their hands books that are not only free from moral impurities but from all artistic blemishes. Among the children's books that we have seen this year, none pleased us more than a series of story-books published by STANFORD & DUDGEON, by the author of Aunt Fanny's Stories. The writing in these little volumes is pure and simple, and they are printed with extreme elegance and good taste. Poor and Proud; or, the Fortunes of Katy Redburn, A Story for Young Folks, by Oliver Optic, is the title of a volume for oldish children, published by PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co., of Boston. Struggles of the Early Christians, from the days of Our Saviour to the Reign of Constantine, a book for any season, but designed for the young, comes from the press of JOHN P. JEWETT & Co., Boston. Seed Time and Harvest, is the title of a volume of tales, translated from the German, by ROSALIE KOHNE and MARIA BRAY, from CROSBY, NICHOLS & Co., Boston. Walter Seyton, a story of rural life in Virginia, is a delightful little book, with the charm of a novel subject. Published by PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co. Blind Bartimeus; or, The Story of a Sightless Sinner, and His Great Physician, by WILLIAM G. HOSE, published by SHELDON, BLAKEMAN & Co., is rather a sermon than a story, and not at well adapted for children as for the instruction of their elders. Children are always uneasy under preaching. The City of Sin, and its Capture by Emanuel's Army, is an allegory by B. F. BRIDGMAN, with an introduction by the Rev. Geo. B. CHEEVER. Published by CARLTON & PORTER, New-York. Isabella Gray is the title of a small novel, by a lady. Published by DESILVER, Philadelphia. Dora Deane; or, The East Indian Uncle, and Maggie Miller; or, Old Hagar's Secret, are the titles of two stories by Mrs. MARY J. HOLMES. Published, in one volume, by G. M. BARTON, New-York.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF EDGAR A. POE. With an Original Memoir. Illustrated. New-York: J. S. REDFIELD.

This edition of POE's poems, which, though bearing the name of a New-York publisher, was wholly manufactured in London, has been pronounced, and we think with entire propriety, the culmination of the art of book manufacture. It is one of those rare things in publishing, a perfectly original work, speaking, of course, of the book and its embellishments, and not of its text. The paper, the ink, the printing, the type, and the binding are all of the highest order of excellence, and the designs are from the best of the contemporary artists of Great Britain. Among them we are proud to find three or four designs from two American artists, CROSBY and DARLEY, which are not in any way inferior to the company in which they are found. It must have been a labor of love with the artists who were employed in the creation of this exquisite volume, for they all appear to have been imbued with the same spirit, which was inspired by the poems they illustrated. This spirit extended itself to the designing of the initial letters, which are so characteristic of the weird spirit of POE as any of the elaborate designs in which the artist has attempted to embody in substantial shapes the subtle feeling which the wayward genius of the Poet infused into his verses. Some objections have been urged against the memoir for its harshness of tone, but we do not see how the subject could have been honestly treated in a gentler manner. If POE were alive to see how splendidly and perfectly his genius has been illustrated, and how daintily and lovingly the elaborate creations of his brilliant fancy have been treated by men of kindred genius, his sensitive nature would have derived exquisite pleasure from the consummation of this most complete volume.

POEMS AND POETRY OF VERMONT. Edited by ANNE MARIA BURNHAM, Rutland: Geo. A. Tuttle & Co. 1856.

The covers of this little volume are of a pale blue tint, but they should have been of a yellow hue, to indicate, at sight, the gaudy-hued contents which belong to the season—resembling a vision in a bench of tulips; but a native of that hilly state, Vermont, must not be constituted because it is so modest in its appearance. Vermont has added her full share to the great money of the nation; but it is no disparagement to her to say that in poetry she occupies a subordinate position to the other New-England States. The editor of the volume before us has aimed in her collection at "representing the general poetic literature of Vermont from its early settlement to the present period," and she has accompanied nine of her examples with brief biographical sketches. Some of Vermont poets, it appears, have published volumes of their writings, but the only names among them that we were familiar with were those of SAXE, O. W. HOLMES, and MRS. HAYES, who is generally known to be a native of the Green Mountain State. The Rich Vermonter was ROYAL TYLER, who died in Brattleboro, Windham County, as well as Chief Justice of the State, in 1826, and his verses are like all that was written in the same time, full of patriotism, and invocations to Liberty. The Rev. Dr. SPRAGUE, who died recently, in Brooklyn, was also, it appears, a Vermont poet; but the most distinguished of the Vermont bards are SAXE and HAYES, with whose names the public are already familiar.

FUTURE LIFE, OR, SCENES IN ANOTHER WORLD. By CYRUS WOOD. New-York: DERBY & JACKSON.

Mr. WOOD has an idea that he has made the first attempt to portray the "possible" scenes of a future life; yet he informs us that "the vehicles of thought and representations of the world to come, in his volume, are the same which have been adopted by writers of the Holy Bible, and by DANTE and MILTON. It is the manner, however, of treating the subject which he claims as his own, and we concede to him a right of property in that respect. The exquisitely lovely imaginings of SWEDENBORG he regards as "abhorrently sensual." To one who regards SWEDENBORG as sensual and vulgar, the celestial regions present themselves in a shape little calculated to inflame the minds of rational beings with immortal longings. The next world, according to the conceptions of Mr. WOOD is but a slight remove from the present state of existence; it is a great school of art, where the disenthralled enjoy themselves in learning to draw, to paint pictures, to model statues, and engage generally in such small dilletantisms. There is considerable ingenuity in Mr. WOOD's inventions, but they are not in the least elevated or poetical, and will not have the effect of raising the human soul many degrees above this sublunary sphere.

PRACTICAL DISSECTIONS. By RICHARD M. HODGES, Cambridge: JOHN BARTLETT.

Dr. HODGES is demonstrator of Anatomy in the Medical Department of Harvard University,—a man thoroughly fit for the post of demonstrator; and hence, since he is not lacking in ability to set down succinctly and clearly what he knows, a very proper person to write a dissector's manual. One of the best things in this his book, is the avoidance of unnecessary minuteness upon unimportant regions of the cadaver. The prolix manuals much in use keep the black-aproned student too long upon each part,—with scalpel in one hand and forceps in the other, he turns over leaf after leaf with his wrist before he has read up attachments, relations, functions of muscles, whose anatomy is not of the slightest consequence to surgeon, physician, or even to lecturer. Dr. HODGES writes tersely, and only upon parts of his subject that repay study. The paper on which his book is served up is tinted to just the color that last reveals the finger-marks of the absorbed student.

WHILE IT WAS MORNING. By VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND. New-York: DERBY & JACKSON. 1856.

This is an exceedingly interesting and well-written story of common American life; the scene is laid in New-England and New-York, the names have a familiar sound, the incidents are natural, and the characters such as we meet in our daily walks. There is nothing of a foreign tone about the book, and all its allusions are of an American character. We have rarely read a more thoroughly domestic story; it is very much in the style of Miss AUSTIN's novels, pure and sweet in its morals, and kindly and gentle in its lessons. There is, as we find in nearly all American works of fiction, and especially so in those by women, a feeling of sadness in its pages which cannot easily be accounted for. That tone of hearty contentment and good humor which predominates in the English domestic novel, and which form the great charm of the always fresh and entertaining fictions of JANE AUSTIN, is wanting in our national novels.

LAYS FROM THE LAND OF LUTHER. SHEPARD & DELISLE.

This beautiful volume, though possessing none of the gaudy externals which characterize the greater number of the books of the season, is, nevertheless, most appropriately illustrated and ornamented. The "lays" are mostly of a devotional character, translated from the German by SUSAN WINKWORTH. The illustrations are spirited etchings from designs by German artists of the first rank, sober and severe in their style, yet full of meaning and lofty sentiment. It is a volume of permanent value, yet admirably adapted to the holiday season. The same publishers have issued a new edition, on large paper, of BLAIR's Poem, with illustrations from the quaint designs of BLAKE, the spiritualistic artist of the last century, who surpassed the ghost-seers of the present day in the vividness of his perceptions, which enabled him to commit to the canvas the strange forms which he saw only with his spiritual eyes.

THE AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE. Boston: PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co.

Not a word need be said in respect to the Autocrat. The public know what his exact merits are; he has gained his niche in the great temple of popular favor, and will remain there while there is a relish for wit and humor, or an appreciation of poetical compositions. The volume in which he now appears is illustrated with sketches from designs by HOPPIN. In any other work they would appear to better advantage; but as every reader of the Autocrat must have formed his own ideas of the look of the personages who figure round the breakfast-table of that personage, the designs of the artist can hardly fail to fall short of the preexisting images in the mind's eye of the spectator.

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY. By THOMAS BULFINCH. Boston: CROSBY, NICHOLS & Co. 1856.

The Age of Chivalry is a very good book, either for young readers or old ones; got up in a very substantial and sensible manner, with the single exception of the illustrations, which are of a kind hardly suitable for a child's primer. The author has divided his subject into two parts, the first being devoted to King ARTHUR and his Knights, and the second to the Mabinogeon, or Welsh popular tales.

The New Conditions of Railway Success.

Thirty years ago, there existed only the rudest mechanical elements of what is now the Railway system of the world;—the unstable tramways, and the clumsy stationary engine of the times. To-day, the general conditions which underlie the successful road and engine of the present period have been met, viz: the approximately permanent road-bed, and the stiff and light rail and joint;—the multitubular boiler, inclosed fire-box and combustion chamber, blast-pipe, counterbalancing, equalized suspension, curving truck, variable cut-off, and light, durable and adjustable parts of the best class of modern locomotives. The past conditions of success have been met; as a consequence Railways have been extended in every civilized country at a cost exceeding five thousand millions of dollars, and collaterally involving other thousands of millions, together with the general commercial interests of the world.

Does this great investment rest on a mechanical basis of perfect and permutable solidity? Are not the conditions of its success changing, slowly, but surely? Have not the disasters of the past year plainly shown that we are not keeping pace with the new emergencies? The competition of rival lines, the largely-increased cost of the standard rail, and the half-worn-out condition of so many railways, are establishing new and imperative conditions, which must be promptly met if the prosperity of this enormous investment and its continuous interests are to be preserved. The proportion of work done to cost of doing it must be vastly increased; fuel must be better burned; steam must be better made, preserved and used; dead weight must be lightened, friction diminished, and flexible and portable tracks made permanently smooth and durable. There is talent enough at work, under promising auspices. No less than five thousand practical men are employed in the engineering and mechanical management of railways. Each of these men brings into the field some special information and experience in the best method of accomplishing the end and to which their united efforts are tending. In all the departments of the railway interest needs the individual focus of this allied army, its action does not keep pace with the new and pressing requisitions, simply because it is not organized and concentrated. The advantage of each of these managers availing himself of the knowledge of all the rest, compared with his unaided and independent effort, is therefore five thousand to one. Each of many improvements that is now saving money in one place, might save money in every place. The cheapest and best investment which railway managers and owners can make, is in the carefully reported and trustworthy results of what paying improvements are in progress all over the world.

Among the few really valuable and successful works of this kind, is the thorough and comprehensive report of Messrs. COLBURN and HOLLEY on the Permanent-Way and Coal-Burning Locomotives of European Railways. This work shows in detail how far and in what features the most cheaply worked Railways of the world are superior to our own, and then describes with all necessary minuteness, and illustrates with numerous and excellent engravings, each of the mechanical devices and expedients which have contributed to this success. It gives new and specific working information as to the best known systems of coal-burning, rails, including shape and manufacture, rail-joints, preserving sleepers, drainage, etc. A large edition has already been absorbed by some sixty leading Railway companies, and is pronounced by them a paying investment. European engineers have amply certified to the correctness of its information as to foreign Railways.

More fresh and practical works of this character on the other numerous branches of engineering are needed. A few dollars judiciously expended in finding out what has already been well done, will save the expenditure of a very much larger sum in those experiments which only lead to conclusions already established.

The Newtonian System of the Universe—Letter from Mr. J. C. Lane.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 19, 1856.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In the TIMES of Saturday, Dec. 11, appeared a review of my lecture, as delivered at the Cooper Institute, on Friday evening. Notwithstanding the vein of ridicule which runs through the whole article, I should not complain were it not for the last remarks, which are decidedly unjust both to myself and to the subject. I quote:

"After the conclusion of the lecture, some of the gentlemen present urged objections to Mr. LANE's theories, some of which appeared fatal. 'A constant force,' one said, 'if applied to a revolving body, would accelerate its motion. 'Yet we see no such effects on the earth.' Neither have we any right to assume that a comet's surface is so highly polished as to reflect in the manner indicated.' Neither of the objections were met satisfactorily."

This I consider as unfair, because I can give points, on both objections, that a rescuer would have carefully analyzed before he would have pronounced the objections fatal.

The theory—and demonstration—of the motive forces of the Universe is not simply a chimera of the brain of one man. There are many of the first scientific and mechanical men of the country who have not only patiently heard my reasonings and demonstrations of these forces, (privately,) but who, after having investigated the subject in its numerous bearings, have given me assurances of hearty cooperation in my views. I expect, of course, opposition; but when objections are made by scientific men they should be supported by some sort of reasoning and understanding. I will try to answer questions at any time; but those made without any real applicability to the subject, and without forethought, I respectfully decline to answer. But with regard to the questions, "neither of which were answered satisfactorily:"

First—"A constant force if applied to a revolving body, would accelerate its motion." "Yet we see no such effects on the earth." This, taken abstractly, is, without doubt, correct; but with regard to the planetary movements, has no application whatever. The implied application is based on the old idea that the earth was originally projected into space, by some power, say, "the centrifugal force," and as "there is no outside resistance in the space through which the planet travels," and consequently no friction either on its surface or axis, there could be no diminution of force, and the projectile would not lose its momentum, but would continue to advance forever. Were the planet or projectile to go in a straight line, this would be a good argument; but were another force applied to the projectile (the sun-gravitating force) to move it constantly in a direction out of its projectile line, there might not be friction, either on the surface or axis, from resisting media—as the term is applied to terrestrial mechanics—but there would be an opposing force, acting constantly against the projectile force which would continually retard it, and were this opposing force greater than the projectile force, the ball or planet would not go through space at all; at least, to obey its first projectile force. A constant force, alone, acting on a ball to rotate it, would accelerate its motion; but if, while this force was rotating this globe, and exerting its power to keep the particles of the globe in the plane of rotation as strongly as it would act to make the same particles move relatively through space, that is, round the axis—I say, if while this force were acting, another force should be applied to endeavor to rotate the globe on an axis which should be situated in or parallel to the equatorial plane of the former rotation, this last force would be continually acting to retard and diminish the first force, and unless the first force WAS CONSTANT, it would soon be annihilated. In the common acceptation of the terms, there are no resisting media here, nor any friction, but still the two forces mutually retard each other, and act surely and certainly as if friction were applied to all parts of the globe at once.

According to the old theories, the centrifugal force first started the planets in their orbits; and as there is no resistance they still go on solely from the original impulse. By inference, the centrifugal force is not now constantly acting to keep the ball in motion; the force which first started the ball is discontinued; after the machine has started, the motor is removed. Natural forces do not always act constantly.

But this centrifugal force would project the ball in a direct line, and were the so-called force of gravitation to be suspended, the ball would immediately go off at a tangent from its orbit, through space; it does not fly off. Then there is a force continually keeping it from flying off; this force is as constantly acting to remove the globe from the line of its projected force. Does this force retard the first, or not? Is there not a necessity for the continuation of the centrifugal force forever? Does the earth increase its speed in its orbit?

My object is to supply these forces, which the old theories do not. Whether the upsetting force is magnetic or not is immaterial. Would forces acting (as my theory suggests) produce the actual motions of the planets? It may be answered, so do the centripetal and centrifugal forces. I ask for a demonstration—How?

As for the second objection, (after the lecture,) "Neither have we any right to assume that a comet's surface is so highly polished as to reflect in the manner indicated." Why not? The question I proposed in the lecture was, whether such a polished sphere would produce the phenomena? not whether the comet were polished. Would such a globe produce the phenomena? Because if it would, we will see whether a comet might be polished or not.

It is now universally received as truth, that the further removed from the sun, or centre of the system, a planet is, the less its density. If the theory of Newton, Laplace, or Herschel is analogous to the truth, this must be so, simply from the fact that in the condensation or cooling of the solar globe, the denser parts would centrect most—that is, the sphere being fluid, the particles would arrange themselves at distances from the centre, according to their density; or, in other words, the nearer the centre the denser the matter. Again: different bodies—metals for instance—require different degrees of heat to liquify them. Platina requires the strongest artificial heat we possess; a bismuth alloy will melt in a cup of hot tea. Now, a ball or planet coming from the coldness of the sketch should be less dense, and might be easier to melt or liquify, and it would not require a great stretch of the imagination to believe that a molten globe might be transparent. Were it transparent, it would be invisible at a great distance. I said, in my lecture that it was immaterial whether the globe was gas or transparent liquid. I have yet to find out that a globe or globule of any liquid, whether transparent or not, has not a polished surface. We can easily account for a large transparent globe in the universe.

The question is, What would be the appearance, situation or rank of a globe, if it occupied the position of the comet? Would we, in outside positions, have an apparent nucleus and tail. Respectfully,

JAS. C. LANE.

New-York, Thursday, Dec. 18, 1856.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A communication from Lima, in Peru, which appeared in your paper of the 6th ulto, and which speaks disparagingly of my Mission in Honolulu, impeaching me in a "military incivility," so far as the interests of our country are concerned, has just met my eye. But your correspondent's palmetto narration, and the stupidity that pervades his mental of the course of events touching the Americans, continues in Honolulu, stamp him as a honest Yankee—if, indeed, he first saw daylight under an American sky.

In view of the great mass of official business dispatched during my transitory stay at this Mission, as shown by the records of the Legation and the gunboat, he was European native in d[illegible] Department at Washington, [illegible] but not American, which [illegible] and [illegible] as a diplomatic [illegible]. But the [illegible] your correspondent [illegible] I [illegible] the reports are found in Sam Patch's Mission, the dissent of Sailor Mistress Rachel, of Cayenne, the dissent of Sailor Mistress Rachel, of Cayenne, the dissent of Sailor Mistress Rachel, of Cayenne

Q.—Under what circumstances did you leave Mrs. B.? A.—One day the door-bell rang; I went down to the door, and Ella was there; I told her to come in; she said she did not want to; says I, "I'll pinch your fingers;" her fingers were in the door; I let go the door; I did not shut it, but swung to and pinched her fingers; Mrs. B. and the Doctor were dressing to go away that afternoon; they both came to the head of the stairs, and Mrs. B. wanted to know what I had done; Ella screamed; I told her I had pinched Ella's fingers; Mrs. B. told me I was a darned fool; I went through the hall, and went up stairs to my work; Ella came in and says, "You are mad," and ran into her mother's room; she says, "Mamma, Phebe is mad;" Mrs. B. comes in and says, "You're mad, and you go;" I told her, "Yes, I am, and if I don't suit you, I wish you would get somebody else who will;" she said, "Say that again, if you dare;" I repeated it; and she was very angry, and came up and boxed my ears, so that I saw stars for an hour afterwards (laughter); I got up and left the house; I did not stop to put on either my bonnet or shawl, and I went over to Mrs. Townsend's; this was about the middle of August, 1855; I have been to Mrs. Bennett's house since.

Q.—While you lived at Dr. Bennett's, were you ever out overnight? A.—I was, once.

Q.—Where were you that night? A.—I could not tell you, unless I tell all the circumstances.

Q.—Where were you that night? A.—I was on the cellar steps; I was there all that night, from 9½ till 4 o'clock in the morning; I sat on the side-door steps for an hour before.

Q.—Was there a letter written to the officers of the Home of the Friendless about your conduct? A.—No; Mrs. B. told me there was one.

Q.—Was there a letter from the Home of the Friendless in reply, regarding your conduct? A.—I do not remember it.

Q.—Do you remember a letter in which it was stated that you would be sent to the House of Refuge if you did not behave yourself better? A.—I do not.

Q.—Or that you were an object of pity? A.—I do not.

Q.—Where have you lived since you left the house of Dr. Bennett? A.—After I left I went to work in a factory; a year ago last June I went to work in a daguerreotype place in Jay-street, and there two months; then I went to a shirt factory, and was there about seven months; then I went to a stocking factory in Franklin-street, and was there a twelvemonth; then I went to Orange, and lived with a clergyman there, and about the middle of September I came to New-Haven, and have lived with Mr. Gillen as housemaid, in Park-street, since; I think he is a brass moulder.

Q.—Have you called upon any of the witnesses in this case? A.—Yes; I have called upon Mrs. North and saw her twice; I called twice to see Mr. Watrous; when in Orange I was called upon perhaps half a dozen times by Mr. Sanford as the agent of Dr. Bennett; I was called on once by Dr. Bennett in Orange; after that I saw him when he called with some ladies to see Mrs. Raymond; I have seen him frequently; he called on me here once at Mr. Gillen's; he did not then talk about the case; I have talked with him of the case in his room in Dow-street; I did not call to see him but to see his sisters; I am now in the habit of visiting his sisters; I never knew them till this case came up; have been there every day since the trial came on.

Q.—While in Orange did you say to any one that you were not a witness in this case? A.—I don't remember saying so; I did not consider myself a witness until summoned; I may have said that I did not want to be a witness; Mrs. North was present at those interviews I had with Mr. Watrous.

Q.—Was it in the daytime or the night that Dr. Bennett kicked in the panel of the door where Mrs. B. was? A.—It was in the daytime, before dinner, I think; there was nothing else done.

Q.—Did you usually remain in the parlor when Mrs. B. was entertaining company? A.—No; I was there sometimes; I was there as a waiter, and not as a lady to be visited; when she unpinned her dress and exposed her person to show the stud, I was there in the room; I had gone to inquire about some work, but she was so much engaged in talking that she told me to wait, and I sat down.

Recross-examined—On none of the occasions on which the Doctor followed me up stairs did he offer to do anything improper to me; I did not promise to Mrs. B. to tell anything but the truth in Court, for I did not suppose she would tell me to state anything but the truth; I placed a great deal of confidence in her, though I found afterwards she wished me to tell what was not the truth. Witness proceeded to relate how she happened to sit on the cellar steps all night. It appears, according to her own showing, that Mrs. B. sent her out on an errand after seven o'clock; on her return she found the door locked, and failed to gain an entrance; soon after, while waiting at the side door, she heard a gentleman ring, and Mrs. B. came to the door and admitted him; they had some music in the parlor, after which the gentleman left; witness then made another attempt to get in, but failed; then she went back, opened the cellar door and sat there till morning; about twelve o'clock she heard a loud ringing at the door, which Mrs. B. afterwards informed her was caused by policemen who came in compliance with the request of Doctor and Mrs. Bennett, who had informed the authorities of her (witness') disappearance.

Mr. Eli Bennett, the Doctor's brother, testified to certain conversations between him and Mrs. Bennett, in regard to the taking of a house in New-York; in regard to the statement of the Doctor's that he was making fifty dollars a day, which she said she disbelieved, and in regard to her setting up a pill store in Broadway, and making herself the attractive feature of it. Witness further stated that Mrs. Bennett spoke to him one day in Nassau-street, at his office [the store was in the Bowery,] in regard to the effect of medicines; at one time, she got some articles from him, and at another she said she got some medicine from her husband; witness was then in the drug business, but is now in none. The remainder of his direct testimony was unimportant, save as to certain matters affecting the character of Mrs. Newman's house, to which he went one day by request, and on opening the parlor door, found a lady lying in rather a fancy position; the foot of the lounge was towards the door, and she seemed to have circulated round pretty freely; one foot was on the back of the lounge, and the other on the floor, and she did not take any particular pains to have her clothes down; she invited witness to come in; he went down stairs and asked Mrs. Newman who was the lady up stairs; she said her name was Mrs. McG——, and that she was a very fine woman.

Cross-examined—Mrs. Bennett called on me at my room, No. 102 Nassau-street, on the left-hand side going down town; it was in the building of the Old Brick Church, on the second floor; I was in the business of buying and selling drugs and medicine there; I sold by the package, &c., when we got a chance; we put up medicines there some—plasters, salves, pills, chilmenia; we used fictitious names, as druggists sometimes do; I don't remember putting up any pills under the name of Hibbard's; that was a public place of labelling medicine as we could make it; we were not engaged in trespassing on the trade name of Hibbard that I remember; he used to come in there frequently; it would it made no difference, as Hibbard's medicines are put up all over; I slept there a part of the time; there was a poor specimen of a bed there; there was a mattress and clothes, which I spread on the floor; I had no bedstead; I think Mr. Bennett's calls on me were made when her husband was in town; she called sometimes with him and sometimes alone; on one of the occasions on which I called on them here I saw my brother overturn a coal-scoop.

Q.—What was your brother's treatment of his wife on that occasion? A.—I suppose I will have to relate the whole circumstances.

(Question repeated.) A.—Well, it was rather peculiar.

(Question again asked.) A.—It was the same as here to him; I don't know that he did anything to her; I can't say what he said to her; I didn't note it down; I don't think I took hold of him on that occasion; I was a going to; I don't think I said to him I had seen him abuse Mrs. B., and that if ever he did so again I would knock him down; I was going to take hold of him because I supposed he was going to strike her—or take hold of her; I don't think I said anything at the time about his abusing Mrs. Bennett; I entertain no doubt on that.

Q.—Will you now state to the Court what was done to the coal-scoop? A.—It was first turned over, I think, by stumbling over it, and then it was catched up and thrown across the room.

Q.—By whom? A.—By my brother.

Q.—Was there anything split out of the coal-scoop upon the carpet of the room? A.—Oh, yes.

Q.—Did your brother say anything about the material that had escaped from the coal-scoop to the carpet? A.—I don't remember that he did; when he threw the coal-scoop across the room, I sat and laughed at him; my impression is, Mrs. B. was not there at the time; I think he said something to Mrs. B. about cleaning up a part of the material on the floor.

Q.—Have you ever said to any one that George Bennett, meaning your brother, could not run away from us bad name, even if he left New-Haven? A.—No, I guess I have not said so.

Q.—Did you not say so to Mrs. B., in the Brandreth House? A.—I don't remember ever saying so.

Q.—Did you ever say to anybody that when you were inquired of, whether you were a brother of Dr. Bennett, you denied being a relation of him? A.—I have. (Recess till 2 P. M.)

AFTER RECESS.

Mrs. L. P. Perry testified that he was married to a sister of Dr. Bennett; that his wife was one of the witnesses against Mrs. Bennett; that he was the author of the Doctor's pill pamphlets, and had traveled for him one Summer as collecting agent, and raised during that period a sum of $1,100; that the Doctor's treatment of Mrs. Bennett was generally kind and affectionate, and that he never exhibited anger save when provoked. This witness went into details and gave his testimony with most deliberate precision.

Joseph W. Hammond, the Doctor's book-keeper since March, 1855, testified to Mrs. Bennett's frequently coming to the office and using very abusive language to the Doctor. He narrated the type-scattering transactions in which Mrs. Bennett is said to have taken so active a part. He entered into several particulars, his evidence so far as it went being mainly corroborative. He stated that the sum collected by Mr. Richmond, one of the Doctor's collectors, in 1856 was $1,120 17; traveling expenses $[illegible]; wages [illegible], boarding and harness, $175; paper, $125; [illegible] of printing, stereotyping, &c., $[illegible]; the rent paid, in a general lump, [illegible]

Horses	$150 00
Carriage	200 00
Harness and saddle	50 00
Notes on time	700 00
Cash on hand	200 00
Household effects	500 00
Yearly income from rent	440 00
Money loaned	400 00
Two lots in the old cemetery, (not estimated,) say	200 00
Total	$3,050 00
Outstanding debts	$380 00

The witness testified that from the bills on file he made the following estimate:

Total amount of money paid for dry goods from 1852 to 1856, (four years,)	1,[illegible] 24
Millinery goods from 1852 to 1856	219 24
Shoe bills for 1854 and 1855	53 24
Jewelry, 1854 and 1855	205 11
Dress-making for 1853 and 1854	54 00

Wm. J. Benton valued Dr. Bennett's real estate in George-street, at between eight and ten thousand dollars; the house on the west side of Dow-street he estimated at nearly two thousand dollars; the house, lot and barn on the rear of the George-street house, at fifteen hundred dollars. This witness testified that he kept Dr. Bennett's house on livery in '53 and '54; Mrs. Bennett rode out sometimes every day and sometimes less often; on some occasions she rode out with gentlemen whom witness thought she met there accidentally; he could not say how frequently; she did go more than once; one of the gentlemen was Mr. Ludlam the chorister of the College Church, and was regarded by witness as a very worthy young man; the name of the other he did not know; he paid no attention at the time to the matter.

Cross-examined—I do not recollect that Mrs. Bennett told me that I was seen coming to the house, that the Doctor hid behind the door, &c.; that he told her to tell me he was out, and she threw open the door and said, "There he is;" I think the estimate put here on the Doctor's horses is not too low.

Mr. Watrous then read the depositions of Alexander Banks, of New-Rochelle, the Rev. Dr. Morgan and others.

Mrs. Josiah Bickelsie, examined by Gov. Dutton—Dr. and Mrs. Bennett boarded with me for a few weeks a year ago last Fall; I never saw anything unkind in his treatment of her; her treatment of him was rather cool and distant; I have not heard her say anything particular in regard to whether she did or did not love him; have heard her say she did not love him; I think he manifested an attachment for her; in my presence he always seemed kind; his treatment of the children was such that I always thought he loved his children and felt as much attachment for them as any father; I cannot think of any particular thing of any importance; I can't say when they left; when they did they went to Mrs. Richards'; the first week, I think, after she left boarding with me, she came in and told me the Doctor had given her $60.

Gov. Baldwin announced that the testimony for the respondent was now closed, with the exception of one witness who was an important one, but who could not appear this evening on account of sickness. He expected, however, that she would be able to take the stand on Monday morning.

The Court reminded the counsel that ten days had already been spent in taking testimony for the respondent.

Gov. Baldwin admitted the fact, but said it should be borne in mind that the testimony was as much for the Doctor as a petitioner as for him in his position as respondent.

The Judge said he was aware that there were two petitioners before the Court.

Judge Ingersoll said he thought the request unreasonable. This lady had during all the time this evidence was being presented sat patiently in Court endeavoring to repress her feelings as much as she could, and was now laboring under the additional distress of having had her youngest child taken down by scarlet fever; and that child might die before the trial ended. He hoped, therefore, that the case on the other side would now be closed, and that the petitioner might have an opportunity of replying to the whole case, without incurring the chances of any of these after-claps.

The Judge consented to admit the testimony of the absent witness on Monday morning.

With this understanding the counsel for the lady opened their rebutting testimony by reading, in reply to the depositions offered on behalf of the respondent, the testimony of Judge Charles Elliot, of New-Rochelle, and others. These exhibited in the most favorable light the conduct of Mrs. Bennett in her relations of wife and mother, and were somewhat severe on the Rev. Dr. Morgan, whose daughter had a dispute with Mrs. Bennett, and who, it was stated in the deposition of one of the proprietors of the hotel in New-Rochelle where they and Mrs. Bennett boarded, were about to be dismissed from the establishment on account of their general disagreeableness.

The Court then adjourned till Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Neither House of Congress was in session on Saturday, and the only occurrence of interest at the National Capital was the first fight of the season, which occurred in the morning, on Pennsylvania-avenue, between Mr. ENGLISH, of Indiana, and Mr. MONTGOMERY, of Pennsylvania. The latter gentleman, who got the worst of the fight, appears, from the reports of the affair, to have been decidedly in the wrong. He rejected the proffered hand of ENGLISH and called him a puppy, whereupon that gentleman struck him over the head with a heavy lignum vita cane. MONTGOMERY then picked up a brick which he threw at ENGLISH without doing him any harm, and then walked off to a magistrate to lodge a complaint against his adversary. As this disgraceful affair is the first Congressional fight of the session, it will receive more notice than it is entitled to. To add to the disgrace of it, MONTGOMERY, as we learn from our own correspondent, proposes to finish the affair by a resort to fists, in which he would be likely to carry off all the honors, as he is some fifty pounds heavier than ENGLISH.

The Senate Committee on Territories, it is said, will not report a bill for the organization of Arizona unless a bill organizing Decotah as a Territory can go with it. And as that cannot be done on account of the non-confirmation of the Indian treaties, extinguishing their claims to the territory, there is but little chance for Arizona. An effort will be made in the House to-day to introduce a resolution instructing the Committee on Territories to report a bill repealing the clause in the English bill, which prohibits the admission of a new State until it has sufficient population to be entitled to a representative in Congress.

The Secretary of War expresses the opinion that the proposed military occupation of Sonora and Chihuahua, so far from requiring any increase of the army, will have exactly the opposite effect. But it appears that several Mexicans have gone back to Mexico to resist, or to organize a resistance to the occupation of Sonora and Chihuahua by our troops, according to the recommendation in the President's Message.

Nothing has yet been heard of the steamship Ariel, which sailed from Southampton on the 1st inst., with full cargo and many passengers. Her absence, while it excites some uneasiness, creates no serious apprehensions, as doubtless the same retarding causes which effected the Indian Empire have acted upon the Southampton steamer.

The European mails by the Arabia were received in this City on Sunday morning. To the outlines forwarded from Halifax, and already printed in the TIMES, we add various details and extracts of unusual interest.

Our dates from Rio Janeiro are to Dec. 3. Serious disturbances had occurred on the line of the Don Pedro II. Railroad, owing to difficulties between an engineer and contractor. The interference of the police and military were required to restore order and permit the passage of trains. A riot had also occurred in Rio, at a circus, ending in the destruction of the tents and appointments. The sales of coffee during the month of October, at Rio, amounted to 207,000 bags.

We have advices from Buenos Ayres to October 26. The dispute between the Church and the Nation was prosecuted with unabated energy. Apprehensions of a general Indian invasion were producing extraordinary excitement and promoting active military preparations. No further tidings of the curious affair of General BENAVIDES at San Juan reach us from Argentine.

A terrible steam-boiler explosion occurred in the sugar refinery of Mr. BELCHER, in St. Louis, on Saturday, by which four persons were killed and several others were severely wounded, two of whom will probably die. A portion of the building was shattered, and such was the force of the explosion that a piece of the boiler, weighing over five thousand pounds, was thrown upwards of one hundred and fifty feet.

The trial of THOMAS ALLIBONE and THOMAS A. NEWHALL, on a charge of conspiracy against the stockholders of the Bank of Pennsylvania, terminated on Saturday by a verdict of acquittal, given by the Jury without leaving their box. The District-Attorney abandoned the case, and the Court instructed the Jury to find for the defendants.

Charleston papers state that the field-officers of the Fourth Brigade of the Militia of South Carolina, are making preparations to give General SCOTT a suitable reception when he lands in Charleston.

The yacht Wanderer, which is alleged to have lately landed a cargo of slaves on the coast of Georgia, has been seized at Brunswick, in that State, by the United States Marshal.

The cold weather has obstructed the navigation of the Hudson and the Canal. The steamer Hero was frozen in on Saturday at Five-mile Mill Point, and other boats are fast locked in the ice.

The only business transacted before the Court of Common Pleas, on Saturday, was the continuing by Mr. JOHN GRAHAM, of his motion to quash the indictments against CHARLES TUCKER and other City officials, for alleged frauds on the City Treasury. Mr. Justice WHITING, as on the previous occasion, enabled for the prosecution. The Recorder will deliver his decision sometime in the present week. To-day, and during the week, two branches of this Court will be held, the unimportant cases going before Judge ROSEKRANS.

The religious services at the National Theatre last evening, were numerously attended, and the congregation listened to the exercises with better order and propriety than is previous occasions.

A conflagration occurred on Saturday afternoon in the Bowery. The fire originated in the Odeon, a lager-bier concert and theatrical saloon, at No. 49 Bowery, destroyed the entire building, a building adjoining, and one in the rear, besides seriously damaging six other buildings. The total damage to property is estimated at $20,000, most of which is covered by insurance. There were several narrow personal escapes. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The New-York Tract Mission celebrated its Thirty-second Anniversary last evening, in the Madison-square Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. DE WITT presided, and addresses were made by the Hon. W. C. ALEXANDER, of New-Jersey; and the Rev. A. KINGMAN NOTT, of this City. By the Treasurer's Report it appears that he has received during the year $17,398 30, all of which has been expended in furthering the objects for which the Society labors.

The report of the City Inspector exhibits an increase of 14 in the mortality of the last week over that of the week previous, and by a most remarkable coincidence the increase is just 14 more than the deaths of the corresponding week of the last year. The whole number of deaths during the week was 365, of the ordinary diseases. The nativity tables give 251 natives of the United States, 62 of Ireland, 17 of Germany, 8 of England, 2 of Scotland, 2 of Switzerland and 1 of France.

A public meeting in behalf of the P. E. Church Missionary Society to Seamen was held at St. Peter's Church, in Twentieth-street, last evening. The Rev. Dr. HAWKS made a few remarks in behalf of the Society, and a collection was taken up in aid of it.

An amusing correspondence between Mr. D. E. SICKLES and a brother of Mr. TUCKER, our Secretary of State, has taken place. It began by being belligerent but ended prematurely. It will be found in another column.

The Cotton Market closed firmly, on Saturday, with sales of 1,500 bales. There was less actively in Breadstuffs, Coffee, Molasses, Spirits Turpentine, and the leading kinds of Oils. Hog products were quite freely purchased. Beef was depressed. Rice, Tallow, and Whisky were quiet. Sugars were in good request. Freights continued inactive.

Our Presidential Bumble.

It has already been announced that Mr. BUCHANAN is devoting the energies of his mighty mind to the settlement of the family dissensions of our New-York Democracy. It is now stated that he has been pleased to decree that the Tammany faction is the only true, genuine, unadulterated Democratic Party:—but it is also added that, in giving this decision, he intends to insist that "The voters shall have something to say about party affairs, and especially about the nomination of candidates for office." This will pass for a good joke in the precincts of Tammany Hall. It is to be hoped the President will come on and superintend in person the execution of this virtuous though slightly verdant proclamation.

It is a little melancholy, it must be conceded, to see the President of the United States devoting so much of his time and attention to the paltry wranglings of Ward politicians. Mr. BUCHANAN has been in the habit of excusing himself to our Ministers abroad for not answering inquiries touching public affairs, by pleading the infinite pressure of his public duties—though the same mail which took these brief apologies, carried voluminous letters full of personal and public gossip to more favored correspondents. But the "duties" which exhaust his energies and engross his attention here, so as to compel neglect of our representatives abroad, consist in superintending the machinery of primary meetings and the details of political intrigue. Little things are said to delight the little mind:—and, if the proverb be true, Mr. BUCHANAN must be quite as happy as his limited capacity for enjoyment will permit. The objects which engross his attention are contemptibly beneath the dignity of his office, however exactly they may be adapted to the calibre of the person who fills it. Every day's historical record is filled with fresh reports of postmasters dismissed from posts, naval storekeepers about to be deprived of stores to keep, minor clerks discharged, or more important officers "decapitated," because of their adherence to certain political views which do not happen to accord with those of the President, and with which the President, in his official capacity, should have no concern whatever. Mr. BUCHANAN appears to regard all individuals whose services are employed by the public, not as public servants but as his own private and particular retainers, who, in accepting office, have bound themselves, body and soul, to slavish obedience to the dictates of a party of which he has constituted himself chief Dictator. If the President sees fit to desert the platform on which he was elected, and to ignore the principles which he advocated in order to obtain the votes of the men upon whom he is now visiting his vengeance, those men must change as he has done. If, on the other hand, he chooses to adhere to a policy which altered circumstances have proved to be vain and delusive, then the public servants, no matter what their private views may be, must adhere also to a creed which they conscientiously regard as false and obnoxious. The moment that men accept offices under Government, Mr. BUCHANAN adopts towards them precisely the course which the Emperor of France employs towards his creatures, or which the autocrat of Russia indulges in with his serfs. Mr. BUCHANAN, with means fearfully inadequate to such an undertaking, takes upon himself to do all the thinking for thousands of American citizens, mercifully leaving to them only the duty of obedience.

Contemptible and degrading as it is, however, to recollect that the appointment and dismissal of officers of all grades to and from the public service, have constituted, so far, almost the sole acts of Mr. BUCHANAN'S Presidential career, of which there have been any visible results, we are far from attributing the disgusting meanness of such pursuits to malice on his part. We are, on the contrary, willing to believe the miserable spectacle to be owing less to errors of Mr. BUCHANAN'S heart than of his head. We dare say that the President does the best that he knows how to do, and acts according to the light that is in him. And if that light, which Mr. BUCHANAN studiously keeps from under the bushel, is an exceedingly dim light, and if his Excellency's knowledge of the requirements of his exalted position is extremely small, we can only condole with our fellow-citizens on the degradation of the highest office in their gift to the ewel of the post of a parish beadle. For Mr. BUCHANAN is a perfect Bumble on a large scale—or, to speak more properly, in an extended sphere of action. Towards the little boys who are under his control, he is an awful tyrant, and is ready to knock their heads off in an instant if they dare even to smile at the Jack-in-office antics in which it is his especial delight to indulge. To those who fawn and spurn him, he is servile, truculent, and fawning; and we believe that if the politicians whom he is most afraid of would allow him to do so, he would be on his knees before Senator DOUGLAS in a week, and we should receive an autograph apology for his trickery in the matter of the Mission.

Whatever may be the source and reason of [illegible] Mr. BUCHANAN, minister of Congress of the United States, comes in fresh from his political action in the Federal metropolis, and studies beside cordially with the populace, and in a few minutes joins hands of admiring friends in congratulating the fellow on his acquittal.

The French have been making a great fuss over their MONTALEMBERT and his conviction. We cannot say that we are very proud to compare with them our MULLIGAN and his acquittal.

Madame Mario and Italy.

Madame MARIO must excuse us if we still do not see, even by her own showing, that MAZZINI proposes to do anything better for Italy than rouse the sympathy of other nations in behalf of that unfortunate country. That he was doing this, we acknowledged to the fullest extent in our first article on this vexed question, but we expressed, and still hold the opinion, that this is bootless labor, inasmuch as the civilized world has sympathized with her for half a century. We also said that if his object was to rouse the Italians to a sense of their wrongs and degradation, he might also feel satisfied that he was performing a work of supererogation, inasmuch as the Italians in our opinion were, and long have been, fully alive to both one and the other. We also expressed, in the strongest terms at our command, our sense of the courage, fortitude and integrity of this unhappy race. We testified, as well as we could, to the admirable pertinacity of the passive resistance they had offered to a crushing and relentless oppression, during a space of time which would have sufficed to break down the spirit of almost any other nation in Europe. If there still remains any doubt in Madame MARIO'S mind as to our notion of their merits in this regard, we really are at a loss to know how to make our sentiments clearer.

We, however, asked at the same time what object Madame MARIO had in view beyond exciting a feeling of sympathy in our breasts for Italy, or whether she had any—because if not, we feared her mission would be barren in results. She has in her last letter answered our query. She desires to have a remonstrance sent to the Powers who are oppressing Italy, on behalf of the Government of the United States, through its official mouth-piece, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs. In other words, she wants to have General CASS do for the Italians what we want to have him do for the Jew MORTARA and his child. This at least is something tangible, the use or practicability of which we can discuss. Our objection to it is, that the two cases are neither parallel, nor nearly parallel. If it were the usual custom of European monarchs to seize upon the children of their subjects, take them from the custody of their parents, and educate them in a different faith from that in which they were born, and the thing had been established for centuries, and there was evidently no prospect of getting rid of it except by an armed resistance of the fathers, or the general progress of princes in justice and moderation, we should strongly advise Gen. CASS to let it alone. But it so happens that this MORTARA case is a solitary and unprecedented instance of unparalleled outrage. It is a blow struck, however, at a right which all civilized Governments in all ages have agreed to regard as sacred and inalienable—the right of a father to educate his child and retain him in his custody. The very fact that the crime is new is extraordinary, and is detestable in the eyes of almost all potentates except those of him who has perpetrated it, leads us to believe that a vigorous remonstrance from Christendom will at least prevent its repetition.

What is there in the case of Italy which makes it at all analogous to this? Her wrongs, unhappily, are nothing novel. Her sad tale is a tale as old as the flood. Her condition is that of hundreds of other countries which, if their past be not so splendid, have rights at at least as sacred as hers. Why remonstrate on her behalf this year any more than in the year 1800? She was oppressed, degraded, priest-ridden and king-ridden when this Republic was born. During the eighty years which have since elapsed, her condition has undergone no change. Revolutions, wars, conspiracies, risings, battles, sieges and fortune have done nothing for her. No matter who gets the upper hand in Europe, she remains undermost—divided, distracted and oppressed. Surely the untying of a knot so knotty has not been reserved for General CASS and a diplomatic note!

Besides, if we remonstrate on behalf of Italy, we cannot, in common fairness, refuse to do the same for other "down-trodden peoples." We must protest against tyranny on behalf of Poland, of Russia, of Finland, of Swedish Catholics, of Prussia, of most other German States, Hungary, Bohemia, Dalmatia, and of France; on behalf of Turkish Christians, and on behalf of the Hindoos; and in short, on behalf of every other people in the world who are suffering from the despotism of their rulers, whether native or foreign. If our remonstrances were likely to produce any effect, we should gladly advise our Government to begin at once. But we all know how they would be received. We know how both Naples and Austria have received the various hints of this kind which have been addressed to them during the last ten years. We know how Count BUOL received the proposition of Count CAVOUR to discuss "the state of Italy" at the Paris Conferences. We know, in short, that any such performance would simply lead to our being well snubbed and heartily laughed at. It is needless to discuss the propriety of our sending Italy men and munitions of war, inasmuch as Mme. MARIO does not ask for them.

For all these reasons, and several others, we believe there is no hope for Italy except either in the repentance of her tyrants, or the union and valor of her own children. We consequently meekly recommended, and still recommend, the adhesion of Italians, whether republican or not, to the only Italian power which has a good army and is on bad terms with Austria. In short, we advised the patriots to see if VICTOR EMMANUEL would undertake, on behalf of his own Kingdom, Lombardy, and Venice, to fight Austria. France and Naples. Madame MARIO now says that all Italians would gladly follow him to the field if he has stomach enough for such an encounter. We doubt if he has. If we were in his position, we confess we should think twice about it, but, nevertheless, there can be no harm in asking him. So, what if MAZZINI and his followers desist from abusing him for barely six months, come before the world on behalf of united Italy—Italy with all her faults, Italians with all their short-comings—try and cease even for that period to decry each other before the world, to parade the treacheries of this one at such place and the cowardice of that one at another place; what if they ask us not to decide which of their parties is the greater rascal, but to see fair play while all join in giving the Austrians a thrashing. If first-class rascals are illegible and so forth, said Mazzini, and he answer said a true thing.

We take we owe it to the Italian story, than which we know there is no [illegible] in the world, to say that there was only one division of it engaged with the Austrians at Magenta; that that division fought desperately, and was nearly cut to pieces; that the second, which ought to have supported it, did not arrive owing to the incompetency or treachery of the general until the battle was lost; that that general was tried by court-martial immediately after, convicted of misbehavior before the enemy, and duly shot. Madame MARIO calls this "bidding the soldiers flee," and a conspiracy of the staff to secure a defeat of their own troops. Anybody who knows the Sardinian staff knows that it is composed of men who are incapable of such atrocious baseness. Probably they may be more faithful to the House of Savoy than to constitutional government, but they are gallant soldiers and men of honor. If we believed with all the Italians here who indorse Madame MARIO'S lectures, that Italian gentlemen, born and bred in the country, and bred, too, in military notions of military duty, could be guilty of such a crime, we should at all events blush to let the world knew it, or to ask anybody's sympathy for our unhappy country.

SENATOR DOUGLAS AND THE CITY GOVERNMENT.—Both branches of our Common Council have voted to give Senator DOUGLAS a public reception on his arrival here from Havana. How much or how little this means we are not aware;—but the flags are to be displayed upon all the public buildings, and a Committee of the two Boards has been appointed to wait upon him, and tender him assurances of distinguished consideration.

As an ambitious politician, disposed to avail himself of every fresh indication of popular strength, Mr. DOUGLAS will probably welcome this complimentary demonstration. But he has passed through our City very often hitherto without finding his progress retarded by any such proffer of hospitality. He will have very little difficulty, therefore, in drawing the inference that it means something more than general respect for his abilities and public services,—that it is intended to glorify his recent political victory in Illinois, and to indorse his platform and his position, in opposition to the action which the President has seen fit to take against him. It is to be a Douglas demonstration in this Democratic City, as against the Administration of Mr. BUCHANAN. Whether the Government officials are yet prepared to take part in it or not, remains to be seen. We presume, however, that, as at present advised, Mr. SCHELL will not raise the flag upon the Custom-house,—that Mr. FOWLER will not illuminate the Post-office, and that Captain RUNDLES will not shake our windows with his cannon in the Park, to signalize the arrival of Senator DOUGLAS.

Except as part of the partisan skirmishing by which the Presidential campaign of 1860 is to be opened, this action of the Common Council is ridiculous and absurd. Upon other grounds, there is no more reason for giving Mr. DOUGLAS a public reception now than there has been hitherto,—no more, certainly, than for extending similar honors to other Senators of equal ability, distinction and public service. It is one of the fantastic tomfooleries which have become chronic with our City rulers, and of which there is probably no hope of curing them. A very large portion of the Democrats, as well as others, in this latitude, expect to see Mr. DOUGLAS the next Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Those who want office or influence with him regard this demonstration as a very good way of initiating their claims.

SIGNS OF WAR—ADVANCE AND RETREAT.—We publish rather an amusing but not very important correspondence in another column, between Dr. J. C. TUCKER, brother of our Secretary of State, and the Hon. D. E. SICKLES, Member of Congress from this City. Mr. SICKLES, it will be remembered, during the Congressional canvass, was excessively and offensively personal in his remarks upon the Secretary. Dr. TUCKER, his brother, conceived that part of his assault was intended for the Tucker family in general, and accordingly invited Mr. SICKLES to Philadelphia or Baltimore to receive a "verbal communication." Mr. S. regarded this as a challenge and refused to hold any communication with Dr. TUCKER until it was withdrawn. The Doctor withdrew it accordingly and he said he waited for an explanation of the charge. The Hon. Mr. SICKLES asked "What charge?" and to that simple and very natural inquiry, Dr. TUCKER has not yet made the slightest response, although ten days have elapsed since it was put.

This is a very curious affair. It is either very mysterious or very funny. It is possible the Doctor has gone up to Albany, and is holding a protracted consultation with the principal party concerned in the affair. If so, in due season the mystery may be explained—though the incubation has already lasted a long time. If this is not the case, we shall be driven to the conclusion that the Doctor has been making himself slightly ridiculous.

A Good Deed Gracefully Done.

The artists of this City have just done honor to themselves and justice to their art by showing that it is a thing of goodness as well as of beauty, and that its service refines the heart as well as the taste. They have collected in the saloons of the Academy of Design, in Tenth-street, about two hundred pictures, one-half of them the works of the late WILLIAM RANNEY, and the rest contributed by the leading artists of the Metropolis—all of which are to be offered at public sale for the benefit of the family of Mr. RANNEY. This gentleman, who died, as our readers will remember, about a year ago, left to his wife and children a home not perfectly secured to them, and it is the noble object of his brother-artists to do for this bereaved family what death forbade the husband and the father to achieve. Mr. RANNEY'S pencil was chiefly devoted to the scenes and stories of his native land. He delighted in the life of the Western prairies, and in the heroic incidents of the War of the Revolution. His picture of "Washington Crossing the Alleghany River on a Raft," of which a fine study is in the collection now to be disposed of, has been long familiar to the public; and there hang now, on the walls of the Academy, numerous sketches of hunting-scenes and historical compositions, which should suffice, of themselves, to secure a large attendance upon the exhibition, were it not, as it is, thrown open freely to all comers. Those who wish to see American artists devote themselves successfully to the illustration of American life, should give their special countenance to this effort in behalf of the family of Mr. RANNEY, who was certainly one of the most patriotic of painters; and this the more readily, that in this instance virtue will emphatically bring with it its own reward. For it is rarely, indeed, that an opportunity is offered for securing so many good specimens from the easels of some of our best painters, almost all of whom are represented in this attractive gallery. CASILEAR sends one of his usual landscapes; CHURCH, a warm and splendid vision of South American scenery; KENSETT, one of his delicious studies of atmosphere; GUSHAW, a [illegible]

Amusements.

SCHERZO OF MUSIC.—The first installment of the grand Mount Vernon Festival was duly paid to the public on Saturday night. A fair representation of the patriotic many was present to receive it, and the performances on both sides were, we presume, satisfactory. The performances were continued with spirit and with less delay than we anticipated, and the length of the bill was therefore, and to prevent inconvenience on the Sabbath the last drama in prose had to be omitted, notwithstanding the fact that Mrs. Hoey and Lucien Wallack were to assist in its representation. Matilda Heron made her reappearance in the part of Rosine, which she played superbly. The play does not excite enthusiasm, but the artists were warmly honored on its conclusion. Mrs. Graham appeared in the comedietta of the "Evening Call," assisted by Mr. Harry Sweet. The piece has been made to render advantage in this City. Mrs. Graham seems to be a well informed patron of average conversationality. We were unable to detect any special merit or promise in Mr. Sweet's performance. The little piece called "The Maid with the Milking Pail" was played deliciously—Miss Anna Bateman's acting being the feature. In the interludes we had music by Mlle. Cozzoni, Mme. Camargo, Signor Marchesi and Signor Bellini. To them, and all other artists, the thanks of the community are due. They have assisted in a noble work, and with that free generosity which is the characteristic of the profession.

During the evening upwards of five hundred tickets were sold for the ball on Tuesday evening, an entertainment which will undoubtedly be the most brilliant of the season. All good friends to noble charities should assist the ladies of the Mount Vernon Association.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—The highly successful revival of SHAKESPEARE'S play, the "Merchant of Venice," nightly crowds this handsome establishment. It will be performed every night this week.

BURTON'S THEATRE.—Mr. BARRY SULLIVAN, the eminent tragedian, commences an engagement at this establishment to-night, playing Hamlet—one of his finest impersonations.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—The comedy of "Our American Cousin" is still the attraction here. House crowded every night. The present indications are that the play will last the season.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—The Circus company at this establishment receives a fair share of public patronage. A new programme, suitable for the holidays, and delicately inviting to the young folks, is presented for the present week.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—Mr. S. S. Howard's new and very successful local drama, called the "Women of the World," will be played here every night this week. It is a hit. Mr. Pease's new drama, called "Pierre the Partisan," will also be played to-night.

BOWERY THEATRE.—The exciting story called "Robe the Reaper" will be given here in a dramatic form to-night. "Asphodel" and "Tom Cobleigh's Lot" are also on the bill.

AMERICAN MUSEUM.—The wonderful Zoolowski children and the Wren comedians perform every afternoon and evening this week.

MINSTRELSY.—Wood's Temple and Christy's are the places to hear the best minstrelsy. They offer excellent programmes.

THE HOLY LAND.—Mr. BANVARD'S works of art are still on exhibition at the [illegible] Broadway-street. No one should neglect the opportunity of seeing these remarkable productions.

Brazil and La Plata.

By the arrival of the barks New Lapit, at New-Orleans, and the Sussex, at this port, we have news from Rio Janeiro, to Dec. 3, and from the River Plate to Oct. 26.

Serious disturbances had taken place on the line of the Railroad of Don Pedro II. Mr. SAMUEL BRANNER, the Superintending Engineer, had endeavored to dismantle the bridges in order to prevent the transit of the trains. A disagreement with the contractor was the source of difficulty. The obstacles were only removed by the forcible intervention of the police and the military.

There was a furious outbreak at a circus, at Rio, on the 1st ult., in consequence of the disappointment caused by the contemptible character of the performances, in comparison with what had been promised, especially in reference to a bull fight. The place was literally torn to pieces, the company which resented, notwithstanding great efforts on the part of the police to restore order. Many persons were seriously hurt by stones and other missiles thrown, and part of the place caught fire, which was extinguished with great difficulty.

The sales of coffee, during the month of October, at Rio, were 207,000 bags, of which 104,000 were exported to this country. Loss for the United States are quoted at 6000 bales.

From Buenos Ayres we learn advices had lately been received from various parts, giving warning of an Indian invasion on a large scale. The drafted troops had in consequence been on the alert, the scouts had been constantly kept exploring the desert, in many places recent tracks of war parties had been discovered, but as yet no hostile Indians had been captured, and from the precautions taken to receive them, it was generally hoped that the invasion might be obviated from making any attempt. Some rumors had been in circulation, for a few days, concerning political disturbances in the country districts.

Nothing further had been heard from San Juan in the facts of Gen. BENAVIDES, who had raised a revolution there, and been arrested. The Commissioner of the Central Government which went to San Juan, by URQUIZA'S order, to take BENAVIDES from the San Juan authorities, and bring him to Parana, had not yet returned.

The Pennsylvania Bank Case—Acquittal of Allibone and Newhall.

The trial of ALLIBONE and NEWHALL, at Philadelphia, on a charge of conspiracy, terminated on Saturday, in a verdict of Not Guilty. The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin gives the concluding testimony:

John S. Newbold testified: We exchanged the Reading Railroad notes of $50,000 for the Southwark and Tradesman's Bank; these are the Bank's due bills; the bills were taken at their face.

Cross-examined—This transaction was in the early part of October, say about the 9th; none of the notes had matured; the notes were all of the Reading Railroad Company, in small amounts, except one of $10,000, which was a few days near maturity; it was payable October 16; Mr. AUSTIN, President of the Southwark Bank, requested me to see if any one wished to exchange for Pennsylvania Bank, for business; I informed Newhall of this, and we made this arrangement with the Southwark and Tradesman's Bank; one of the Reading Railroad Company's notes I collected myself from the Trustee of the City Banks.

George Fuller, Jr., testified—This is the renewal of Wm. H. Boyd's notes; they amount to $10,000; the $250 is for the interest; I gave Newhall these three checks on the Bank of Pennsylvania, for $10,000; the true amount of interest was $116 and the Bank paid the $84; these notes were paid on the 26th of October; Newhall said the whole of the interest belonged to the Bank, as the Bank had made it; the notes were paid with the interest.

Cross-examined—These are the identical checks in question.

Col. Wm. C. Patterson testified: I was acting president of the Bank of Pennsylvania; I was chosen about the last of October; I had previously been a Director; subsequently I was made an Assignee; I settled Newhall's account about the 1st of October; this was before the credit was made another day; his son and Mr. Betton; we marked the checks for his balance; I ordered them to be marked; Newhall's final balance in Bank is [illegible] silver; the Bank paid its creditors in [illegible] whenever they would take them; the [illegible] Commonwealth were paid in [illegible] bill got the $10,000 note of the Reading Railroad Company, for which he [illegible] bank notes and other [illegible] it in his hands, as it was for the [illegible] I examined his account [illegible] and also after I was made [illegible] and asked his balance to be [illegible]

To Mr. Longstreet—Mr. Newhall had his [illegible] marked paid for the balance we made up of the amount in Bank.

After the examination of several witnesses, the District Attorney submitted the bill to the Jury in the following charge:

Mr. Wharton argued that there was no evidence of the innocence of Mr. Allibone.

Mr. Longstreet complimented the Bank Examiner on the discharge of his duty in the case.

Mr. Longstreet said it was the evidence which had been produced by Newhall that caused the finding of the grand jury.

Judge Pearson then instructed the Jury in the following manner, intimated that they should find a verdict for the defendants.

After the charge of the Judge, the Jury, without leaving their seats, and without hearing the [illegible] pronounced a verdict of "Not guilty."

CITY INTELLIGENCE

THE THANKSGIVING CHESS-MATCH.—The second game of the Telegraphic Chess-match between New-York and Philadelphia was commenced on Saturday evening. The New-Yorkers accepted their old quarters of the Merchants' in the Merchants' Exchange. There was not a large attendance of amateurs. In the first game, which it will be recollected was a draw, New-York had the move. Philadelphia now opened first and the game was opened as follows:

PHILADELPHIA.	NEW-YORK.
1....P to K 4.	P to K 4.
2....K Kt to B 3.	Q Kt to B 3.

At this period of the game, it being 10½ o'clock, there was an adjournment until to-morrow evening.

FAIRS FOR DESTITUTE ORPHANS.—Two Fairs, managed innumerably and praiseworthy, open to-day—one at Niblo's, in aid of the Institution for the Relief of the Aged and Infirm, to which we have recently directed the attention of our readers, and the other for the Home Mission Chapel of the Church of the Incarnation. This last mission has been carried on for about two years, and embraces that part of the eastern portion of the City between Fourth-avenue and the East River, and extending from Twenty-sixth-street to Thirty-second. It has been very successful, and has done a great deal of good. The object of the present effort is to raise funds to erect a chapel, in which a school and religious services can be conducted. The Fair opens to-day at the Chapel of the Home of the Friendless, in Twenty-sixth-street.

A THREE-FOLD TALE.—About three weeks ago a young man living in Brooklyn, who desires that his name should not be made public, answered an advertisement for a confidential clerk in the importing and commission business, which appeared in a morning paper. He received a reply signed "Warrenton & Co.," No. 26 South William street, and when he called there he was informed that Mr. Warrenton was at Havana, but a man, who said his name was DELMAR, represented that he was one of the firm, and engaged the young man at a salary of $500 per annum, to be increased in three months, but required him to deposit $25 with him as an earnest of his good behavior. Mr. B. had not the money, but left a watch, valued at $100, with DELMAR. Yesterday, Mr. B. made an affidavit before the Mayor, setting forth that since this time he had endeavored in vain to obtain an interview with DELMAR, and that he had recently ascertained that the latter had been arrested for swindling other parties, and had pawned the watch of the complainant. He found his watch at a pawn office, and the case was placed in the hands of officers of the Mayor's Court.

YOUNG GUARDIANS FROM BALTIMORE.—By a resolution of the City Council of Baltimore, a Committee was appointed to examine into and report on the workings of the different systems of conducting the public institutions for the benefit of the poor in the cities of New-York, Philadelphia and Boston. The Committee are now in this City, and stopping at the Metropolitan Hotel. The following gentlemen compose the Committee: James H. Wood, Chairman; Amos McComas, Silas Beacham, G. A. Talbott, James H. Cook, Alfred Mace, Thomas Iswell, Jr., and Thos. H. Harrison.

SUMMARY JUSTICE.—Last Saturday Wm. MUNN, alias Bob FARMER, CLARKE a bundle of weekly papers, while the owner was refreshing the inner man with a cup of coffee in a Nassau-street saloon. A watch was kept for the thief, but without finding him until Saturday, about 9 A. M., when Munn was nabbed by Officer PHILLIPS, of the Second Precinct. He was taken before Justice Osborne, who sent him with the documents to the Court of Special Sessions, and by 11 o'clock the literary delinquent was sentenced and on his way to a three months' residence in the Penitentiary.

CITY MORTALITY.—According to the report of the City Inspector there were 305 deaths in the City during the past week, an increase of 14 as compared with the mortality of the week previous, and 14 more than occurred during the corresponding week in last year. Among the principal causes of death were bronchitis, (10,) consumption, (43,) infantile convulsions, (32,) apoplexy in the head, (14,) inflammation of the lungs, (18,) infantile marasmus, (18,) and scarlet fever, (16.) The mortality table gives 201 natives of the United States, 52 of Ireland, 17 of Germany, 8 of England, 2 each of Scotland and Switzerland, and 1 of France.

NEW-YORK HOSPITAL.—The following is the weekly report of the New-York Hospital to Dec. 17:

	Surgical.	Medical.	Total.
Remaining on Dec. 10	135	92	235
Admitted to Dec. 17	22	13	45
Discharged, cured or relieved	15	9	27
Died	1	2	3
Remaining at date	140	92	232

Patients out, 55; patients, 34.

RAILROAD CASUALTY.—CORNELIUS COLLINS, a boy eleven years old, was run over, on Saturday evening, by a Stew Haven Railroad car, at the corner of Forty-fifth-street and Fourth-avenue, and dangerously injured. He was taken to the residence of his parents, in Third-avenue, near Forty-third-street. The accident is said to have been caused by carelessness on the part of the boy.

BRANCH'S EXPERIENCES.—STEPHEN H. BRANCH will deliver a second lecture this evening at No. 654 Broadway. He proposes to describe his trial in the Court of Sessions and his experiences in prison. Branch has engaged several assistants and all will appear in costume and represent the scenes to be described by the lecturer.

SUDDEN DEATHS.—RICHARD MCCARTY, a carman, while driving his car on Saturday evening up Broadway, was suddenly seized with an apoplectic fit. He was taken into a drug store, but died almost immediately. On the same evening Mrs. REDDY dropped dead at her residence in Roosevelt-street. Inquests will be held on both bodies to-day.

Police Reports.

MORE STABBING CASES.—On Saturday afternoon, Patrick King, a boy not yet fifteen years of age, stabbed Timothy Dillon, a man nearly fifty years old, in the back, inflicting a wound of dangerous character. Both were employed in the printing establishment of Rodney & Russell, No. 79 John-street, and it was there the stabbing took place. The injured man was conveyed to the City Hospital, and the boy was arrested and committed.... The groggery of Patrick Stumper, No. 19 Pearl-street, was also the scene of a stabbing affray at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Edward and Charles McConnell, two brothers, and John St. George and Terrence Mulligan were drinking hot punches together. The hot drinks excited warm feelings, which ended in the two McConnells stabbing the other two parties named. The First Ward Police were called in, and they arrested the illegal users of the knife. The prisoners were yesterday taken before Justice Osborne, but the injured men refused to complain, and they were accordingly discharged.... Still another case is recorded. On Saturday evening, Benjamin Taylor, an ingenuous colored youth, stabbed Eliza Titus, a colored woman in Baxter-street, in the back. The colored woman immediately declared the colored youth to be a masculine descendant of a canine quadruped of the feminine gender. Taylor was promptly arrested and committed to the Tombs.

THE POLICEMAN STABBING CASE.—Officer Davison, of the Eighth Ward, who was stabbed a week ago, is pronounced by his physicians out of danger. Patrick Duffy and Wm. H. Drake, who are charged with being implicated in the stabbing, have been confined in Jefferson Market Prison since Monday last, awaiting the result of the officer's injuries. On Saturday, the result of the officer's injuries, owing to the improved condition of Officer Davison, admitted them to bail—Drake in the sum of $2,000, and Duffy in half that amount. Jim Colwell, the principal in the murderous assault, has not yet been arrested, and the Police have been thus far unable to obtain any clue to his whereabouts.

DANGEROUS PROMENADERS.—Three young gentlemen, whose exterior showed a studious cultivation of the harbor and fairy ways noted as Saturday afternoon, promenaded Broadway, and paid the compliment to Detectives, notwithstanding their promenadering, they were looked up under the direction of Wm. Wright, Chas. Hutchinson and Henry Wilson, and locked up in the station-house. Bummer way, it is said to smack with these well-dressed and well-to-do gentlemen. The reporter can confess to the Police, Magistrates and Grand Jury that they walks are turned to profitable account.

ARREST OF THE REAL HARRIS FRANKS.—NICHOLAS GRIFFIN, a river thief, was arrested this morning by the Harbor Police, for stealing rope from the Hope Company. He was locked up in the Essex Market Jail.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

FIRES.—Mr. M. REEVES' carpenter-shop, on the corner of Fifth and North Second-street, Eastern District, was destroyed by fire on Saturday evening; loss, $1000; insured for $500.... Between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning, a blaze broke out in the basement of store No. 13 Fulton-avenue. The fire seemed to be connected with the foul story, occupied as a furniture store by A. Norman, who lost nearly all his stock valued at $1,000, upon which there was no insurance. The building is owned by Ex-Mayor Hunter, whose loss is about $500, insured.... The building in which the Sheriff's office is located, and two adjoining buildings with brick fronts.... The fire had not gone far each building when discovered, that the whole block would have doubtless been destroyed, but for the supply of water obtained from the Hydrants recently erected.

MORTALITY MORTALITY.—The whole number of deaths reported during the week ending Saturday last, was 98. Men, 19; Women, 21; Boys, 20; Girls, 18. Of these there died of Asthma, 1; Dysentery, 1; disease of heart, 1; congestion of lungs, 1; inflammation of lungs, 1; inflammation of stomach, 1; inflammation of liver, 1; inflammation of bowels, 1; inflammation of the brain, 1; inflammation of the throat, 1; croup, 1; inflammation of the lungs, (diphtheria,) 1; croup, 1; fever and congestion, 1; inflammation of the lungs, 11. Forty-five were under 10 years of age, and 11 were over 80. The nativity table gives 10 born in Ireland, 36 in the United States, 1 in England, and 1 in Germany.

BURGLARY.—A few months ago MICHAEL KENNEDY and another man, under arrest for burglary, escaped from Constable Pierce while going to the jail in Bayonne-street. Kennedy was recaptured on Saturday last by Officers OAKES and CASLER, of the Deputy Superintendent's office, to answer a charge of having robbed a store on Atlantic-street only a few months ago. He was committed for trial.

THE KINGS COUNTY DEMOCRACY.—At a recent meeting of a committee of Democrats, appointed to settle the differences among the Democracy of Kings County, the following proposition, as a basis of an arrangement, was adopted: The Democratic Aldermen, Supervisors, Vestrymen, Sheriff, and City Committee, each appoint one Inspector for every Ward and Town, to hold an election to choose delegates to form a consolidated committee for the City of Brooklyn and the County of Kings.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING.—As the South Ferry-boat Atlantic was entering her slip at the foot of Atlantic-street, about 9 o'clock on Saturday night, the officers of the boat saw a man struggling in the water, and, with much difficulty, rescued him alive. It is not known whether he fell from the boat or pier. He was quite insensible when taken out, but when restored he refused to give any account of himself.

DEED OF SEE INJURIES.—ANN MARIA BAKER, domestic, residing in a family at No. 302 Grand-street, Eastern District, who was badly burned by fluid white filling a lighted lamp, a few days ago, died on Saturday evening.

LILLIE'S SAFE.
WILLIAMSBURG, Dec. 2, 1858.

MR. LILLIE—Dear Sir: Last night my office, corner Keap-av. and Morton-st., Williamsburg, was entered by burglars, and a daring, though unsuccessful attempt made to break open and rob my safe, which, fortunately for me, was one of yours.

A sledge hammer weighing 15½ pounds, together with two sledge hammers, three cold chisels, two punchers, and an iron bar, were found near the safe in the morning, which, from their appearance and the dents upon the door and top of the safe, would indicate that they had been thoroughly used in trying to cut or break open the safe. An attempt was made with the crowbar and sledge to drive the bolts in so as to wedge the door in open with powder, as they had done three or four sheet iron safes in this neighborhood within two or three months past. But they found in this one a construction of metal which successfully resisted any tools or efforts they could bring to bear upon it.

You will please send me another safe of the same size as I am perfectly satisfied that your safes will effectually resist any attempt burglars may be able to make to open them. Yours respectfully, E. S. STERLING.

Fire Defied!!!
ABOVE-NAMED COMPLETE TRIUMPH OF VALENTINE & BUTLER'S ALUM PATENT FIRE PROOF SAFE.
NEW YORK, Dec. 11, 1858.

Messrs. VALENTINE & BUTLER,
GENTLEMEN: On the morning of the 10th inst. a destructive fire occurred in the Harlem R. R. Depôt buildings. The county portion of White-street was totally destroyed. It comprised a part of the premises for the manufacture of Patent Package Cases, and our machinery and stock were completely destroyed; our books and papers, and also a very valuable watch were deposited in one of your Alum Patent Fire Proof Safes, and we were pleased to find on getting it out of the ruins, that it had proved itself a "Safe" in reality. All the contents were found in good condition, with the exception of the binding of the books, which had been started by the steam. The watch, on being wound up, proved to be in perfect running order. We wish you to send us another of your Safes at your earliest convenience. Yours, respectfully,
THE PATENT PACKAGE CO.
C. F. Dickinson, Secretary.

A complete assortment of the Alum Patent Safes for stores and dwelling-houses for sale by the Patentees and sole manufacturers.
VALENTINE & BUTLER, No. 237 Broadway.

A Word About Hair Restoratives.—The original, as it is still the best, preparation for restoring gray hair to its original color, and rendering it strong, healthy and beautiful, is Helmstreet & Co.'s Infinitable Hair Coloring or Restorer. Every other preparation advertised for this purpose is but an imitation of this. Most of them are made with water, and require the expense of a hair-dressing to accompany them, as they leave the hair harsh and dry. Helmstreet's is made with oil and stimulating spirits, affording an agreeable hair wash, aside from its value as a restorative. It is sold at a reasonable price, placing it within the reach of all. We might introduce certificates sufficient to fill this paper, extracted from those received from Clergymen, Senators, and well-known citizens in all parts of the country, but it is not necessary. We leave our readers to judge that if IMITATIONS can produce comparative successful results, the ORIGINAL and imitated article must surpass them all. Price 50 cents a bottle. Sold everywhere.
W. E. HAGAN & CO., Proprietors, Troy, N. Y.
HEGEMAN & CO. retail it, and BARNES & PARK, CARY, HOWARD & SANGER, and JAMES T. MAXWELL, wholesale it.

Special Notice.—Dealers in Goodyear's patent for vulcanized rubber suspenders, braids, webs and all other fancy and articles made by combining fibrous materials with threads or sheets of vulcanized rubber, are notified that, unless the same are properly stamped or labelled with my name and by my authority, they cannot be legally disposed of in the United States. Merchants and dealers are invited to examine specimens now in store, and to give their orders for the Spring trade to the undersigned, exclusive owner of the titles and exclusive rights to the patents for these goods, which embrace all the styles heretofore manufactured or imported, and many others. Also, licenses to manufacture and sell, and the terms, may be obtained on application to me at No. 23 Cortlandt-st., New-York. HORACE H. DAY.

INDIA RUBBER GLOVES AND MITTENS.
Great improvements have been made in the manufacture of these articles of late, and we now offer them for general use. The heavy gloves and mittens are unrivaled as a protection in all kinds of cold work of the chemist, druggist and photographer, manufacturing and handling of acids, alkalies and other strong chemicals; for operators, drivers in stages, and all others exposed to the inclemency of the weather; for Firemen and Fire Departments. We would particularly call the attention of farmers, mechanics, hostlers, teamsters and boatmen to these gloves and mittens as being well adapted to their use. They are superior to the book mitten, especially in wet work. The light gloves are used for washing and blacking the horses. As a remedy and relief for sore or chapped or rough hands, nothing can be found to equal—as very useful while engaged in domestic affairs such as sweeping, dusting, house-cleaning, and are invaluable in attending to coal fires; a requisite in every family for washing, coloring, all rough and dirty kinds of work, and particularly useful in gardening and care of shrubs and flowers. For sale by rubber dealers generally.

PROPOSALS FOR $350,000 CENTRAL PARK IMPROVEMENT FUND STOCK.—Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office, No. 5 Hall of Records, until MONDAY, Dec. 20, 1858, at 2 o'clock, P. M., when the same will be publicly opened, for the whole or any part of the amount of THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS of "The Central Park Improvement Fund Stock of the City of New-York," authorized by an act of the Legislature of the State, entitled "An act for the Regulation and Government of the Central Park in the City of New-York," passed April 17, 1857, and by an Ordinance of the Common Council, approved by the Mayor Nov. 12, 1858.

The said stock will consist of THREE THOUSAND SHARES of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS EACH SHARE, bearing interest at the rate of SIX PER CENT. per annum, payable quarter yearly, and the principal sum redeemable on the 1st day of August, 1887.

The proposals will state the number of shares, and the price per share. The stock to be issued as follows: $50,000 within three days after the acceptance of the proposals, and the balance in monthly instalments of $50,000 each, until the whole sum is issued.

The persons whose proposals are accepted will be required to deposit with the Chamberlain of the City the sum awarded and covered by the bid, and on presenting the receipt of the Chamberlain to the Comptroller, will be entitled to receive a certificate for the par value of the number of shares, carrying interest from the date of the deposit.

Each proposition should be sealed up and indorsed "Proposal for Six per cent. Central Park Improvement Fund Stock." And the proposition may then be put up in a second envelope, sealed and directed, "A. C. FLAGG, Comptroller, No. 5 Hall of Records, New-York."

The right is reserved on the part of the Comptroller to reject any or all of the bids, if considered necessary to protect or promote the interests of the City.

A. C. FLAGG, Comptroller.

[illegible]

—[illegible] Buildings Partly Insured —$22,000 Worth of Property Destroyed—Restaurant and Saloon Scorched.

A most destructive fire occurred on Saturday morning. Three buildings were entirely consumed, including the Odeon Theatre, and six buildings were partly burned. The total estimated loss is $25,000, and there were several narrow personal escapes.

The fire originated in the Odeon, a lager-bier concert and theatrical saloon, at No. 49 Bowery. GUSTAVE LUXENBURGER, a German, owns and occupies the building. Mr. LUXENBURGER and a gentleman were in the bar-room, and no person, so far as is known, was in the theatre. A brilliant light like a flash of lightning suddenly illumined the rear room, occupied for theatrical purposes. Mrs. LUXENBURGER was just enabled to discover that the flashing light was caused by some artificial Christmas trees having taken fire. The fire spread with such alarming rapidity among the combustible scenery and light upholstery work that before an alarm could be given the room was almost instantly filled with a solid blaze. The second floor, immediately over the place where the fire originated, was occupied by Mr. Z. GAZZO as a billiard room. Mr. GAZZO, who is not entirely well, feeling unpleasantly overcome with the heat and smoke, and [illegible] through the extraordinary efforts of Louis GAZZO, his son. The son was considerably scalded about his face and hands. Two persons who were playing billiards in the room at the time leaped from the window to the pavement, fortunately escaping serious injuries. A servant girl of Mr. LUXENBURGER jumped from a second-story window, and was not injured.

When the firemen arrived on the ground the fire had reached the third story of No. 49 Bowery. The building was a four-story brick structure, and with its entire contents was destroyed. The basement was occupied by FRANK HOGAN as a bowling saloon. He estimates his loss at $100—no insurance. Mr. LUXENBURGER, who occupied the first and upper stories, estimated his loss on his furniture and fixtures at $5,000—partly covered by an insurance of $1,500 in the Astor Insurance Company. Mr. GAZZO, who occupied the second floor as a billiard saloon, sustained a loss of $300, and is only partly insured. The loss on the building is $6,000, and is insured in various City Companies.

The buildings adjoining, on either side and in the rear, were not fully reached by the flames. So fiercely did they rage that a panic prevailed through the entire neighborhood. Storekeepers in the vicinity began to remove their goods in great haste. Poor people in the rear tenement houses in the rear, near Christie-street, heaved their furniture from the windows into the street, and collected together with their little ones at a safe distance from the fire.

No. 47 Bowery, a three-story brick building, was saved from entire destruction only through the indefatigable exertions of the firemen. Nearly a dozen streams of water were thrown into the building, completely deluging it. The first, second and third floors were occupied by P. HOGAN as a lager-bier saloon and boarding-house. The furniture was nearly all removed to that Mr. HOGAN's loss is only $500. Insured for $1,000 in the Lenox and $500 in the Astor Insurance Company. Mr. C. H. VAN WYCK lost $300, partly covered by an insurance of $1,500 in the Astor Insurance Company. The basement was occupied by MASON & SOMMER as a cigar store. Their stock is damaged about $500; insured for $1,000 each in the Hamilton and Excelsior Insurance companies. The building is owned by HASKAN, EMERSON & PARKER. It is damaged about $600, and is insured $2,000 in the Broadway, and $600 in the Stuyvesant Insurance Companies.

The Volks Garten, a lager-bier saloon in which the vocal entertainments are given similar to those which were furnished at the Odeon, occupies the building No. 45 Bowery. It was feared that this establishment and rival to the Odeon in dispensing the popular Teutonic beverage, and furnishing popular Germanic amusements, would meet the fate of its nearest rival. The activity of the firemen prevented such a result. The damage to the stock and fixtures was about $300, and to the building $1,000. The stock and fixtures were insured for $2,500 in the City Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., and the building and theatre insured for $12,000 in the Hamilton, Relief, St. Mark's City Insurance Company of New-Haven, Northwestern of Oswego, and Gerard Insurance Companies of Philadelphia. The building is owned by ALBERT, RAUMANN and HAGEN.

The building adjoining the Odeon on the northerly side suffered a more disastrous visitation than either of the contiguous buildings. The walls only of the building are left standing. The first floor was occupied by CROMWELL & Co., manufacturers of tobacco stippers. They estimate their loss at $10,000, insured for $3,000 each in the St. Nicholas, St. Mark's, Neptune, Williamsburg City, and Astor Insurance Companies. [illegible] occupied a portion of the second floor as a billiard saloon, sustained a loss of $300, and is only partly insured. The loss on the building is $6,000, and is insured in various City Companies.

[illegible] lived in the rear part of the building. He lost his furniture—worth $300. No insurance. General Denyse, of Brooklyn, owned the building, and was protected against loss in the Brooklyn Insurance Company.

Mr. A. RIEDT occupied No. 53 Bowery as a furniture establishment. The building was slightly injured by fire. Mr. RIEDT suffered about $500 damage, done to the stock by water.

The occupants of the four-story tenement houses, Nos. 29 and 31 Christie-street, in the rear, all suffered more or less damage by water and breakage of their furniture, caused by removing it into the street. Two or three jumped from the windows to escape suffocation by the dense smoke, but, fortunately, were uninjured. The thriving gentry, who never fail to be on hand on such occasions, managed to make away with a good many articles of furniture belonging to the unfortunates. The building, No. 29 Christie-street, was damaged to the amount of $1,000. HENRY KEMPE, who keeps a bakery in the front part of the building, on the first floor, had his stock damaged by water about $300; insured $500 in the St. Mark's Insurance Company.

A small wooden building in the rear, adjoining CROOT's Dining Saloon, was entirely burned. It was occupied by three families, who lost nearly all their furniture. It was feared at one time that Mr. CROOT's saloon would be burned.

It was bitterly cold, and the firemen worked gallantly. Platoons of police from the Sixth, Seventh, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Seventeenth Precincts were present, and rendered efficient aid in protecting property and preventing the crowd from obstructing the firemen in their labors. The origin of the fire is unknown. The fire was first seen in that part of the building where it originated. It will be made the subject of investigation by the Fire Marshal.

A man named THOMAS RAFFERTY was run over by Engine Company No. 24, while going to the fire. He had hold of the rope and accidentally slipped and fell under the wheels. He was taken to the City Hospital, but his injuries are not considered dangerous. He was not a member of the Engine Company.

BAYARD-STREET.—The alarm at 10½ P. M. last evening in the Sixth District, was occasioned by a fire in the house No. 82 Bayard-street. The basement was occupied by A. LEWENTHAL, dealer in wines and cordials, who also occupied the second floor as a dwelling. Loss about $300; no insurance. The first floor was occupied as a dwelling by J. C. COGAN, whose loss is about $100; no insurance. The fire originated under the stairway. The building is owned by a Mr. VALKENBURG, and damaged by fire and water about $1,000; fully insured. At the discovery of the fire, Mr. LEWENTHAL was in bed with his wife, on the second floor of the building; he arose, dressed himself, went out of his premises into the entry, and has not since been heard from. Captain DOWLING, of the Sixth Precinct, supposed that Mr. L. was in the ruins, and immediately caused a thorough search of the debris, but without any satisfactory result.

FIRE IN CARMINE-STREET.—The alarm of fire for the Third District, at 7 o'clock last night, was caused by a fire on the premises No. 20 Carmine-street, occupied by WORTLEY & TAMLYN, pawnbrokers. Damage about $300—insured. Insurance $5,500 in the Stuyvesant Insurance Company. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the carelessness of a servant girl, who set some clothes on fire in her room on the third floor.

Coroner's Inquests.

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT—A DOUBLE INQUEST.—JAMES LEONARD, a brakeman in the employ of the Hudson River Railroad Company, was run over on Friday by a train of cars near Poughkeepsie, and killed. The Coroner of Poughkeepsie held an inquest on the body, and a verdict of "Accidental Death" was rendered. The body was brought to this City for interment. Owing to the Coroner having failed to give a certificate, his burial could not be proceeded with. Coroner HILTS, therefore, on Saturday, held a second inquest upon him, when a similar verdict was returned, after which the remains were interred. The deceased was 22 years old, and a native of this State.

UNLAWFUL OPERATION.—A young man stylish in dress, but bearing the unpretending name of John Smith, on Saturday evening took a stew and a whisky punch at WINDSOR's saloon, in Park-row. He offered for his repast a counterfeit $5 bill on the Conway Bank, of Conway, Mass. The receiving clerk knew the bill to be bad, and instead of handing his customer his expected change, handed him over to an officer. The youthful John Smith is now lodged in the Tombs, awaiting an examination.

THE LARGE WHITE POLAR BEAR.—Readers of the Dispatch must often have noticed in the advertisement of CHARLES SCHERR & Co., referring to their large White Polar Bear which they exhibit in one of their windows. Why these gentlemen, who deal so extensively in Ladies' Cloaks and Furs have allowed their modesty to keep secret the great scientific fact to which that Bear has important reference is more than we can tell. Certain it is, however, that one of the evidences, and perhaps the most important of the truthfulness of Dr. KANE's narrative of an open Polar Sea is daily and gratuitously exhibited at No. 475 Broadway.

In a lecture delivered by Dr. HAYES at a special meeting of the Geographical and Statistical Society on Thursday evening, the 16th instant, he said:

"None of the party under KANE had any doubt of the reliability of MODEST's statement as to the open sea. He brought with him Bear Skins, and it is a well-known fact that bears keep near the open sea."

The bear exhibited by CHARLES SCHERR & Co., with a view merely to attract attention to their valuable stock of Furs is much larger than the celebrated Polar Bear in the London Zoological Gardens, and it is we are assured the only one which has reached either this country or Europe—secured during KANE's memorable expedition.

We predict that the time will come when to say that we have seen this great historical relic, will excite the wonder of our children's children, and make zealous the hearts of our less fortunate cotemporaries.—From the New-York Dispatch.

MONDAY, Dec. 20—A. M.

The Stock Exchange during the past week underwent several sudden changes of tone, owing to political rather than financial causes, so far as the regular dividend-paying securities are concerned. The sales made on Washington Rumors were the lowest on Tuesday. On the next day, advices were in private hands of the real state and character of the Central American and Mexican questions, and these were soon succeeded by the publication of the very pacific diplomatic correspondence on the subject. The reaction in prices on Thursday was not fully sustained to the close of the dealings on Saturday, owing to the increased weakness of some of the Western Stocks, particularly the shares and bonds of the Illinois Central and the shares of the Michigan Central. The remainder of the market left off steady, at the outside figures noted in our weekly table of the course of the market, as follows:

RAILROADS OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE FOR THE WEEK.

In regard to the New Federal Stock, the sales through the week (in all about $300,000) were at 104½ ⅌ cent., interest from Jan. 1. One or two time sales were made at this price at the close on Saturday, on the telegraphic announcement that the second ten millions are advertised by the Secretary of the Treasury to be awarded on the 24th of January; the money to be paid in by the 15th March. The award is made earlier by several weeks than some parties anticipated, though it seems that the present means of the Department are still expected to carry it over the 4th of March. The following is the official notice of the Loan:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Dec. 17, 1858.

Sealed Proposals will be received at this Department until 12 o'clock, noon, of Monday, the 24th of January next, for ten millions of stock of the United States, to be issued under the act of 14th June, 1858. Said stock will be reimbursable in fifteen years from the 1st of January next, and bear interest at five ⅌ centum ⅌ annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year.

No bid will be received below par, and none for any fraction of one thousand dollars. No bid will be considered unless one ⅌ centum of the amount is deposited, subject to the order of the Secretary of the Treasury, with a depositary of the United States, whose certificate of the same must accompany the bid. In all cases the bids must be unconditional, and without reference to bids of others, and must state the premium offered therein.

The sealed proposals should be indorsed on the outside of the envelope, "Proposals for Loan of 1858," and be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C. The sums which may be accepted from any bidder will be required to be paid to the depositary of the United States nearest to his residence, or indicated as most convenient by him, should bids be accepted from parties not residing within the United States, they will be required to deposit the principal and premium with the assistant treasurers at Boston, New-York, Philadelphia, or New-Orleans.

Certificates of stock for sums of one thousand dollars, payable in the subscribed bidders or bearer, with coupons of semi-annual interest from the 1st of July next, also payable to bearer, attached thereto, will be issued for the amount of the accepted bids upon the certificates of deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States with the depositaries of the United States. The stock will, in all cases, bear interest from the date of such deposit. The interest from that date to the 1st of July next will be paid to the successful bidder or his attorney by the depositary where the deposit was made.

Successful bidders will be required to deposit the principal and premium of their accepted bids on or before the 15th of March next. The preliminary deposit of 1 ⅌ cent. will be immediately directed to be returned to the unsuccessful bidders.

HOWELL COBB, Secretary of the Treasury.

Among the State Stocks the speculative sales are running principally on Missouris, as affording the only considerable supply upon which to base time contracts. The stock fell under the political rumors early in the week to 88⅞ ⅌ cent., and subsequently sold, in large sums, at 89@89¼@89⅜ ⅌ cent. On Saturday, $100,000 were sold, 60 days' option to the seller, at 89¼ ⅌ cent., and further contracts in the afternoon were offered in the same way at 89⅜ ⅌ cent., the cash stock clearing 89¼ ⅌ cent. Virginias and Tennessees are steady, and Californias are stronger since the last mail. There are no Ohios on the market, and New-Yorks have become remarkably scarce, even at the full prices bid both for the five and six ⅌ cents.

In the Dividend Shares the principal business continues to run upon New-York Central, the fluctuations of which during the week were from 84¼ to 83½, then up to 84¼, and finally closing 83⅞ ⅌ cent. cash, and 83¾@¾ on seller's option. The Stock is made pretty much the standard of the general tone of the market; and for this reason, rather than the relative supply and demand, the speculative transactions in it range from 5,000 to 8,000 shares a day. The two Stocks connected with our Pacific or California trade were both in favor at the close, after selling down 1@2 ⅌ cent. early in the week. The January dividend and statement of earnings of the Panama Company, besides yielding 6 ⅌ cent. for the half year, or 12 ⅌ cent. in cash to the stockholders for the whole year, will probably show a surplus of 7@8 ⅌ cent., of which 2 ⅌ cent. or $100,000 will go to the sinking of the sterling loan of the Company. The Pacific Mail Shares closed 90½ ⅌ cent. The prospect of any formidable opposition to the concern in the California trade, as well as the danger of international trouble in the Gulf of Mexico or Carribean Sea, has passed away, and the short sellers, who have rather increased their contracts of late, now rely upon the chance of a rupture between the Company and VANDERBILT, which we learn from a pretty direct source is equally remote and unprobable. The shares of the Delaware and Hudson, Pennsylvania Coal, Delaware and Lackawanna, and Reading, all connected with the Anthracite Coal trade, leave off steady. The business in Reading on Saturday was quite active at 51¾@52, closing 51¾ ⅌ cent. Some short sales have been made in Delaware and Hudson, though the December dividend is generally satisfactory to the old shareholders, and in some instances ½ ⅌ cent. better than was hoped for from the dullness of the Coal trade through the early part of the season. The stock being secure of 7 ⅌ cent. income this year, will probably return to 8 ⅌ cent. in 1859, the trade in all quarters promising a gradual improvement, of which only 20 or 25 cents the ton would make a large difference to the income of all the Companies. The Reading brought to market last week 41,760 tons, against 36,530 the same week last year, although the Canal competition is not yet closed by ice. The Schuylkill Canal brought down 17,493 tons. The Delaware and Lackawanna Company marketed 13,841 tons, against 6,128 tons same week last year. The stock of the Company has advanced to 50 ⅌ cent. from a depression, last season, and the first mortgage to 88@90 ⅌ cent. from a depression to 40@50 ⅌ cent. Of the Western Stocks, Illinois Central was unsettled by the late English advices, and sold down to $70 for $60 paid in—or, by the practice in the Brokers' Board, at 69 ⅌ cent. Michigan Central was pressed, on the poor receipts of the line early in the present month. Galena and Rock Island continue unsettled, and close 1 ⅌ cent. lower than the previous week, although there is not the same pressure of short contracts. Hudson River shares keep steady, on the improving business of the line through November and December, with a diminished scale of expenses. The gain in December promises to reach $50,000. Southern Michigan is dull and lower, by ¾@1 ⅌ cent., on both classes of stock.

On the Railway Bond list, we remark a heavy decline, 3 ⅌ cent. on the La Crosse Land Grants, and 2 ⅌ cent. on Illinois Central Construction Bonds. The mortgages on the Roads nearer home are all firm and in good request, the daily offering at the Board being light. Hudson First Mortgage is worth 102 ⅌ cent. A few of the Harlem First have been done at 88@88¼ ⅌ cent. The difference in security, where both are undoubted, for the amount of the first lien—$4,000,000 on the Hudson and $3,000,000 on the Harlem—is somewhat inconsistent, and arises out of the circumstance that some few parcels of the latter were, until recently, under hypothecation on the Street. The Bonds of the Erie, without being so firm for the unsecured issues, are in good request. New-York Centrals are scarce, and both the Six and Seven ⅌ cents. held for full rates.

The Foreign Trade of the port of New-York for the week past shows an Import entry, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, of $2,735,565 as against $2,606,063 the same week last year. The Exports of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods are $1,069,565, against $1,184,959 same week last season. The Export of Specie to Europe (by City of Washington, and the Bremen, on Saturday) is $227,314, against $378,584 direct and $683,000 via Boston same week last year. The Gold movement to the South during the week, as far as known, is $850,000 by coast steamers to New-Orleans, while the receipts from Boston and Philadelphia are nearly as much—from Boston the ascertained receipts are $470,000. The Sub-Treasury balance varies but slightly, $6,235,916 on Saturday afternoon, against $6,344,033 at the close of the previous week. The California receipts which went into Bank on Monday, but little more than balanced the sums which went out the preceding Saturday to Europe, $632,000, and to the Sub-Treasury, in exchange for Treasury Bills, $710,000. So that only a moderate difference, either way, in the Specie line, is looked for on the Bank averages to be made up this afternoon. On the Loan column, an addition will probably appear from the recent negotiation or reissue of Treasury Bills, most of which went into Bank, by purchase of or advances upon these Bills. The regular mercantile Discounts are not likely to vary materially. The tendency, however, is to a gradual increase, as the Spring business approaches, particularly while the line of undrawn Deposits is so large and steady. The Exchanges with Europe are held at very full rates, on account of the ease in Money here and at New-Orleans, and the consequent close competition between the Southern banks and the New-York banking-houses, as buyers of Cotton bills; London, 109¾@109¾; Paris, f.5.17½@f.5.13¾. The rates for Money continue easy, both for mercantile paper and on demand loan to the Brokers.

According to the monthly summary of the Custom-house movement, made up to 1st December, and published a few days since, the Imports of Foreign Merchandise at the port of New-York, from 1st January, were $137,322,000
Add two weeks in December 4,802,544
Total to date $142,212,044
Against same time, 1857 212,726,211
Decrease this season $71,514,067

The same tables make the Export of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods, including Foreign articles reexported from Jan. 1 ..... $65,265,000
Add (two weeks in December 1,720,412
Total to date $66,985,413
Against same time, 1857 78,826,584
Decrease this season $15,841,171

The same tables make the Export of Specie to 1st December $59,160,000
Add to December 1,167,314
Total to date $60,327,314
Against same time in 1857 41,865,763
Decrease this season $18,595,449

The receipts of California Gold and Foreign Gold and Silver at the port of New-York, from 1st January last to the present date, are:

From California	$23,572,487
Europe, Mexico, &c	2,200,000
Together	$24,872,487
Against 1857, to date:
From California	$22,254,301
From Europe, &c	12,211,000 — $34,465,301
Decrease this year	$9,592,814

The Foreign mails by the Arabia at Boston, from Liverpool, Saturday, Dec. 4, were delivered at the New-York Post-Office yesterday morning. The English Funds closed on Friday evening, Dec. 3, 96¼ for money and the same for the account. The French Funds are 74 for money. The English Bank return to Dec. 1 shows an addition of £4,016 to the stock of Bullion. The other items stand, as compared with the previous week, as follows:

Public Deposits	£8,245,211	Increase	£373,412
Other Deposits	12,491,766	Decrease	239,162
Rest	3,094,738	Decrease	56,[illegible]

Other Securities	18,422,330	Increase	106,536
Notes Unempl'd	13,[illegible],040	Increase	72,010

The Circular of Messrs. BARING reports Money in fair demand, at 2¼@3 ⅌ cent. A quiet market for Foreign and Colonial Produce. A Liverpool firm writes of the Cotton Trade at Manchester:

"The engaged condition of producers tends to keep the Manchester market for Goods and Yarn very firm, and for such qualities as are in immediate request advanced rates have been paid. The demand for foreign markets is steadily increasing, and there are some indications of enlarged action on the part of home consumers, which imparts confidence in the future."

The latest in regard to American Railway Stocks is reported from the London Stock Exchange by the Times of Dec. 3, as follows:

The Philadelphia Ledger, of Saturday, says of the operations of the Pennsylvania Sinking Fund:

"Some dissatisfaction having been expressed at the manner in which State loans have been purchased for the Sinking Fund, the State Treasurer a week or two since, advertised proposals for the sale of $100,000 of State 5s. The proposals were opened yesterday, with the following result: $42,202, at 96 94-100 ⅌ cent.; $12,000, at 96¼ ⅌ cent.; $8,400, at 96½ ⅌ cent.; $67,529 at 97 ⅌ cent.; $100,600, at 97¾ ⅌ cent., and $16,500 at 98 ⅌ cent. The whole amount bid, it will be seen, is $246,231. The following figures show the amount, the par value, and the price paid by the State for the redemption of the stock:

Par value.	Rate.	Principal.
$6,400 00 at 96¾ ⅌ cent		$6,176
12,000 00 at 96¼ ⅌ cent		11,550
42,202 73 at 96 94-100 ⅌ cent		40,489
39,397 27 at 97 ⅌ cent		38,215
$100,000 00		$96,430

By this purchase the State saves $3,570, besides the annual interest on $100,000 from the present time until the stock is redeemable."

Justice GRIER, of the United States Supreme Court recently affirmed the validity of the County Bonds of Washington County, Pennsylvania, pursuant to the ruling of the Courts of the Commonwealth, on the Constitutional and Legal points in the question, and we now learn from the Philadelphia Bulletin, that

"The Commissioners of Washington County, at a meeting held on the 10th inst., determined, in making their annual estimates for 1859, to 'consider and estimate the interest due and to become due on the bonds issued by the county to the Hempfield Railroad Company,' and to levy a tax sufficient to meet all outstanding interest, as well as that which will fall due during the year 1859. This action was taken in consequence of the decision of the United States District Court, in the case of WILLIAM M'COY vs. The County of Washington, wherein the legality of the claim for interest on the bonds was sustained. The amount of bonds issued is $200,000.

The following is the Official Summary statement of the value of the exports of the growth, produce, and manufacture of the United States during the year commencing on the 1st day of July, 1858, and ending on the 30th of June, 1859, exclusive of Gold and Silver:
